CAMPBELL OF SCHOOLS DIES IN HIS SLEEP

Superintendent of Schools Patrick T. Campbell, beloved by thousands and known as one of the most eminent educators in the country, died suddenly today at his home, 270 Bay State road, Back Bay.

He was found dead in his bed when his wife sought to rouse him this morning. Doctors said that he had suffered a heart attack during his sleep and had passed away quietly.

Death had apparently come without warning. Although the superintendent had suffered several times from minor attacks of what he called stomach trouble he had never been away from his desk more than a day at a time.

WORKED UNTIL 5 P. M.

He was on duty all day yesterday. He presided at his weekly meeting of school department heads in the morning and lunched with his assistant superintendents at noon, with Carl Dreyfus, publisher of the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser, as a guest.

Then he returned to his office where his secretary, Miss Ellen M. Cronin, said that he checked reports and dictated letters for the balance of the afternoon. He left for home at 5 o'clock, apparently in the best of health and spirits.

He would have been 66 years of age on April 14. He was born in Jersey City, N. J., son of Thomas and Mary Campbell, but came to Boston at an early age. A year after the death of his father,

Ski Pants on Girls Banned in Schools at Provincetown

Provincetown, 40 m. E. of Boston, Feb. 12—It is "unhealthy and unladylike" to wear ski pants in school, Principal Allen E. Hamey of Provincetown high school ruled today.

In fact, it is an "unhealthy and unladylike" feat to send two girls home from school yesterday, he explained, because they were wearing such clothing.

He said further that the superintendent of schools, the principal and the faculty had adopted a rule against such attire three weeks ago.

On their side, the pupils of the school began circulation today of petitions in protest and declared their school paper, "The Anchorage" will come out with an editorial in defense of ski pants."

ORDER PROBE OF 15 STATE HOSPITALS

In the state institutional investigation today developments were:

1—The legislative committee on public welfare found conditions at Boston State Hospital so bad that it favored immediate appointment of a special commission to survey all such institutions.

2—State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley reported that rare volumes of Dickens' works, women's coats and tennis racquets had been charged against patients' accounts and maintenance funds for Boston State Hospital.

3—Thomas F. Fallon of Hyde Park, sixth of the seven old trustees at Boston State Hospital resigned, while the governor's office was assured that the resignation of Mrs. Katherine Bestie of Milton, last of the old trustees, would be in the mail in 24 hours.

4—Department of public health doctors examined scores of inmates at Wrentham State School while laboratory experts examined specimens from two patients whose conditions, they said, might tend to back up charges on conditions there.

COMMITTEE HORRIFIED

Thirteen members of the legislative committee on public welfare made a thorough survey of Boston State Hospital today, and at the end of their tour overwhelmingly expressed themselves as "horrified" by conditions.

State Senator John D. Mackay of Quincy, chairman of the committee, declared that there was no question but what Governor Hurley's inaugural request for a Hyannis, Feb. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Alison Holstrom had a hunch today to stay home from work at a hotel chain store "because I felt something would happen."

She was right 100 per cent.

Shortly after 9 o'clock her six-year-old son, Robert, discovered a fire in the cellar. Before firemen had extinguished the blaze, it caused damage estimated by Fire Chief Lester Howland at $2000.

WOMAN WINS HER FIGHT TO ADOPT BABY

Despite protest by Miss Winifred A. Keneran, head of the Child Guardianship Division, State Public Welfare Department, adoption of an 11-month-old girl was granted today in Dedham probate court by Judge Joseph R. McCoole.

Adoption was granted to Miss Rosamond Hunt of 30 Warren street, Brookline, said to be one of the wealthiest women in the state.

The protest by Miss Keneran was based on a possibility, she told the court, that the child, daughter of Richard and Dora Maddox of Bay State avenue, Somerville, and one of several in the family, might grow up to be spoiled.

Allowance of Miss Hunt's petition came after Judge McCoole had called her to the bench and asked if she realized the seriousness of the step she was taking in adopting the child of another family.

When Miss Hunt said she fully realized the responsibility and that she had had the baby in her own home for the past six months and had become closely attached to the child, Judge McCoole granted the adoption plea.

In her petition, Miss Hunt said the assent and desire of the parents accompanied her pleas, because they had several other children and found it difficult to provide for all of them.

Miss Hunt was represented in court by Attorney Henry C. Cushman, who drew the petition.

Secretary Airs Brennan Deposits

Attorney John J. Brennan, her former employer, once told her he had written letters intimating her insurance larcenies, it was testified in Superior Court today by Miss Mary H. Cronin, at Brennan's trial.

Miss Cronin also declared in her testimony that some of Brennan's money had been deposited in a bank under the name of one of her aunts.

Testimony by the former secretary on these two new points in the case came after Miss Cronin, in a clash with counsel, had caused a flurry in the trial.

DOROTHY CULLEN LEWES

As she forecast in an exclusive interview given the Boston Evening American a few hours after her arrest, Mrs. Dorothy Cullen Lewes, vivacious, titian-haired Boston girl, was freed today in Worcester superior court in connection with the $125,000 Kennedy jewelry robbery.

When she gave the interview two weeks ago, Mrs. Lewes claimed she was innocent of any connection with the robbery; that her arrest was a mistake and that she knew, when her day came in court, that she would be exonerated.

She had been charged with Jerboring Joseph Bellina, one of two men convicted and sentenced to State Prison for 15 to 20-year terms for the actual robbery of Mrs. William J. Kennedy in Southboro, last November.

Detroit, Feb. 12—With ink on the strike settlement agreement hardly dry before its plants were evacuated by sit-down strikers, the General Motors Corporation today started herculean efforts to get its strike-bound plants back into operation.

The company cancelled "stop orders" for materials which had been sent out when the strikes started 44 days ago, and estimated it had placed $25,000,000 worth of orders in allied industries supplying its plants.

Following the lead of General Motors, Packard Motor Company today announced a flat pay increase of 5 cents an hour for its 13,000 employes.

The increase, effective immediately, will raise the company's payroll approximately $2,000,000, it was said.

With the Chrysler $13,000,000 raise Wednesday, and General Motors $25,000,000 annual payroll boost with the signing of the peace pact yesterday, it was estimated $40,000,000 yearly has been added to auto workers' pay checks.

M. E. Coyle, general manager of Chevrolet, today announced 40,000 employes in seven plants would return to work Monday morning. Two plants are in Detroit. The others are in Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Muncie, Ind., and Toledo, O.

While General Motors was concerned with starting the wheels of its farflung empire turning again, the United Automobile Workers Union moved to consolidate its position.

Members of the union and representatives of the company under the agreement signed yesterday will sit down around a conference table Tuesday and begin bargaining over union demands.

By that time, the company hopes to have its 100,000 to 135,000 strike idle back at their machines, and drawing $1,000,000 a day pay.

The first order to resume operation was issued today to 12,500 Buick workers in Flint, who were told to report Monday.

Meantime, today and tomorrow cleanup squads of workers were to get the plants shipshape.

Start of operations in General Motors was expected to prove a tonic to all lines of business, particularly supplying industries.

General Motors said it uses 15,000 tons of raw material a day, and it was estimated that when operations are resumed it also will lead to rehiring of 100,000 men in allied trades who had been laid off after the company issued the "stop orders" against shipments of parts and materials.

Emerging as hero of the strike negotiations was Frank Murphy,

BRITAIN TO SPEND $8,000,000,000 FOR ARMAMENTS

MOVES TO CLUB ALL EUROPE INTO KEEPING PEACE

By Associated Press

Great Britain turned her thoughts today to ways and means of ensuring her insular safety in the event she is unable to preserve peace in troubled Europe.

Informed circles reported her armament program would near the astounding sum of $8,000,000,000 in the next five years, and would be used as a club to enforce European peace.

A secret air raid test was held during the early morning hours to determine effectiveness of protection for one of the country's great aviation construction centers.

A tea party at Wimbledon proved a grim omen of what the future may be when 400 guests donned gas masks as a stunt to popularize their distribution to and use by every man, woman and child in the nation.

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—Great Britain was reported in informed circles today to be planning war expenditures of between $6,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 in the next five years as a "big stick" to enforce peace in Europe.

The huge drive for armaments launched by the government yesterday, according to indications in parliamentary circles, would be used as a visible and invisible club over the heads of bickering European nations.

WANTS TWO-BILLION LOAN

The estimates for the long-term program followed quickly on the heels of the government's request to Parliament for a $2,000,000,000 defense loan.

How fast the money would be raised and spent for the largest peace time war plan ever outlined to Commons remained undisclosed.

The present rate, plus the requested defense loan, would put the five-year total at $6,250,000,000, but most informed sources expected the eventual amount would be higher.

For the year ending March 31, Britain's defense expenditures will exceed $870,000,000, which many sources believed would be increased annually leading to a grand total far beyond that indicated even by the $2,000,000,000 loan.

OPINION DIVIDED

Opposition to the government move came from several quarters and was summed up by an editorial in the News Chronicle.

Pointing out the nation was on the verge of an industrial boom and in the full tide of monetary expansion with prices of necessities already beginning to rise, the paper declared:

"A defense loan at this time will greatly complicate the task of the authorities in keeping expansion within the bounds of reason. It will increase the likelihood of a speculative bubble, to be followed by a sharp slump."

The Daily Telegraph struck an opposing note, saying:

"If the government proposals are an intimation that we shall make ourselves strong and respected they leave full latitude for any adjustment upward or downward that an alteration in the prevailing temper of the world may make advisable."

Britain Stages Mimic Air Raid to Test Light

Bedford, Eng., Feb. 12 (AP)—Bombers roared through the night while special traffic picked its way along darkened streets in the hours before dawn today in a secret test of British air raid precautions.

Street lights were hooded and traffic signals were covered so only a ray of light showed the way to motorists.

The bombers were sent up to endeavor to spot vital landmarks in the darkness.

The closest secrecy marked the demonstration, supervised by the home and air ministries in cooperation with Bedford police, fire department, hospitals and workmen.

Significance was seen in the fact that only a few miles distant from Bedford are the Cardington aviation factories where the dirigible R-101 was built and which now construct Britain's balloon fleets.

The home office announced the test was "an attempt to establish the minimum amount of light required under war conditions to enable essential traffic to proceed with safety and to ascertain if restricted lighting was visible from the air."

DEATH STALKS EARTH, SEA, SKY IN MADRID BATTLE

By the Associated Press

Spain's see-saw of war tilted back and forth today for both Fascist insurgents and the Socialist government—one up and the other down, then the other way. Death stalked earth, sea and sky.

Shouting Moorish troops in the ranks of Madrid's fascist besiegers pointed an insurgent drive which established a new 10-mile front along the Jarama river southeast of the city at a heavy cost of life for the defenders.

The move left still unsettled the question of which side controls the Madrid-Valencia road. Each claims it. Complete encirclement of Madrid is the fascist objective.

AGAIN TAKE WEST PARK

Socialist artillery sought to break the incompleted fascist ring on the northwest with a bombardment that failed to dislodge insurgents from fresh positions in the University City section. The government reported its air fighters shot five fascist planes out of the skies on the outskirts of the city.

Insurgents streamed back into the West Park section of Madrid after low-flying planes raked the center with machine gun fire and Socialist infantrymen "mopped up" with hand grenades. This was but one of several struggles over the barricades of the city.

Only two and a half miles north of Valencia, temporary seat of the Socialist government on the Mediterranean, insurgent warships pounded more than 30 shells into the village of Alboraya, only two and a half miles north of here, today.

The bombardment lasted a half-hour. No casualties have been reported. Most of the shells fell harmlessly on the beach.

There were no signs of panic as the citizens heeded the alarm sirens and hid in bomb-proof shelters.

The sound of the firing was heard plainly in Valencia, leading at first to the belief another attack was being made on the seat of the Socialist government.

London Airs Nazi Rebellion Plans

London, Feb. 12 (INS)—The London News Chronicle in a Paris dispatch said today it understood the Czechoslovakian general staff has information that Germany intends to engineer a rebellion in Czechoslovakia.

JAPAN SLASHES 'WAR' BUDGET

Tokyo, Feb. 12 (AP)—The new cabinet of Premier Senjuro Hayashi slashed by sweeping prices for the necessities of life, slashed 289,000,000 yen ($76,739,150) today from budgets's record-breaking budget for 1937-38.

The new total was 2,769,000,000 yen.

It amounted to approximately $790,000,000 at the current exchange value of the yen ($6,5250 cents) as compared with the approximately $870,000,000 called for in the budget compiled by Finance Minister Eiichiro Baba in the recently resigned cabinet of Premier Koki Hirota.

The ministers, approving the budgetary estimates for the fiscal year from next April 1 to March 31, 1938, cut $13,126,100 from the army and navy appropriations, in equal slices of 23,000,000 yen ($6,565,050).

The new army estimates were set at 704,000,000 yen ($200,886,000) and the navy's at 658,000,000 yen ($187,760,330).

The revised draft was submitted to Toyotaro Yuki, the new finance minister, who recommended a tax increase over last year of 290,000,000 yen ($82,747,500).

To Halt Seaman

After a chase down the harbor had failed to overhaul the collier Malaton, sailing for Newport News, Va., police here seized Virginia authorities to board the ship, on arrival there, and arrest Charles Watson, a seaman, allegedly wanted at Solitude, R. I., on a breaking and entering charge.

NAZI ENVOY FOR SPAIN REBELS

Berlin, Feb. 12 (AP)—The German government formally announced today its legation, credited to the Spanish insurgent junta of Generalissimo Francisco Franco had been raised to the status of an embassy.

Charge d'Affaires Wilhelm Faupel, the announcement stated, had been named first ambassador to the junta, which Germany recognized some months ago as the de facto government of civil war-torn Spain.

Shortly after the announcement Faupel was ceremoniously sworn into his new rank at the foreign office by Baron Konstantin von Neurath, minister of foreign affairs.

SOCIALITES DON GAS MASKS IN BRITAIN

NOVEL "WAR PARTY" HELD

Wimbledon, Eng., Feb. 12 (AP)—Four hundred feminine guests at the Lady Mayor of Wimbledon's tea party resigned themselves today to ruined coiffures and disarranged make-up to don gas masks as a grim reminder Britain must be prepared for war.

Gas masks were placed above the conventional tea and cakes at Mrs. G. Farquharson's novel party at the town hall to help the government popularize precautions to be taken against gas attacks.

Even a baby was drafted to do its bit in a gas-proof baby carriage, supplied with air through its mother's gas mask.

"These English women have a sense of humor along with a deep sense of responsibility," said Mayoress Farquharson of her novel 'At-Home.'"

Answers to many of the invitations, emblazoned with the borough coat-of-arms, she said, contained the phrase:

"With pleasure."

"While style and vanity naturally balk at the idea of wearing the ludicrous things," she said, "we realize the necessity of being prepared for eventualities and we are anxious to promote the government's scheme."

Even Wimbledon's famous tennis center court is included in the prosperous borough's plan for gas defense. The scene of tense battles between the world's ranking tennis stars will be an emergency ambulance depot and the spacious club rooms a clearing station for victims.

Boettigers Get Many Newspaper Ideas in San Francisco Visit

THEY REPORT GAINS MADE IN SEATTLE

San Francisco, Feb. 12 (US)—"The John Boettigers of Seattle were San Francisco visitors."

That isn't a social or political note, even though the Boettigers are daughter and son-in-law of the President of the United States.

There was a strictly business visit here of the publisher and the associate editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, homeward bound from Southern California where they spent ten days in conference with William Randolph Hearst.

Circulation Up

Tall, keen John Boettiger, named publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer last December and equally tall, vivacious Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, named associate editor at the same time toured the San Francisco Examiner offices here, as they recently did offices of Los Angeles Herald-Express newspapers in search of new ideas.

For an hour Boettiger, when he acquired the publication's post, Mr. Hearst had the mischief:

"Make it the best newspaper in Seattle."

Together they entered the lark with such enthusiasm that today Boettiger was able to report, with pride in his voice, but disclaiming credit:

"Now we have several thousand more circulation than when the paper suspended in August. Many people agree that is quite an accomplishment. But I do not take credit for that in any sense of the word. It demonstrates the interest of the people of Seattle in the paper."

When his wife's name was recalled pridefully upon him, Boettiger expounded the merits of Seattle, its harbor and the accomplishments of the Pacific Northwest in a manner to make a prudent bard with pride of place behind him.

To Write Column

"But nowhere along the Pacific Coast has business any more ability for not going ahead," he said. "The anti-labor strike is settled, the automobile strike is settled, and nothing remains in hold it back.

"Of course, some people complain about the national administration, but I don't," dryly added the Seattle son-in-law.

Mrs. Boettiger finds "certainly more interesting than anything I've done before."

As director of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer Homemakers' Club she has brought interest in the highest pitch in its history. Six thousand women recently attended one of the club's meetings.

"Men are going to read it as much as women," Boettiger said.

"Can a wife work happily at her husband's side in a great enterprise?" Mrs. Boettiger was asked.

"I love it," she said.

New York, Feb. 12 (US)—Mrs. Alfred M. Landon, wife of the 1936 Republican presidential candidate, has few regrets about the "White House" of their own.

"I'm enjoying private life," she remarked today when she arrived here with her husband for the Lincoln Day dinner of the Republican Club. "I've been busy with our new White House—"

Since the November election she has been busy. Busy with plans and supervising the construction of their new Colonial type home—a white home with huge pillars—on the rolling hills west of Topeka.

Buy Tract

The Landons have recently purchased the 160-acre tract, which includes a small lake and a golf course, and bridle paths where the former governor will ride his favorite horse when he returns home from looking after his oil interests.

Although Mrs. Landon parried the direct question with a snifling answer, "I don't have to talk politics now," close friends believe that she has urged her husband to continue as active national leader of the Republican party.

$900 to Democrat!

With customary reticence, she has commented little on the recent election, but when she found that she had a $900 surplus in the state budget for the governor's house, she confessed ruefully:

"And I thought I was leaving that for a Republican governor's wife."

The new governor of Kansas is a Democrat.

What she thinks of the presidential campaign results Mrs. Landon keeps to herself, but her home has always come first.

17 Flee Blaze In South End

Seventeen persons, four of them children, were forced to flee from their homes today as fire of undetermined origin broke out in a four-story apartment building in Holyoke street, South End.

Fire officials said the blaze started in the fourth floor of the building and had spread down into the third and second floors before it was discovered.

Pius 15 Years Pope; Hails King as Ethiopia Ruler

Vatican City, Feb. 12 (AP)—Pope Pius, observing the 15th anniversary of his coronation gave his apostolic benediction to Victor Emmanuel today as "King of Italy and emperor of Ethiopia."

The Pontiff, still confined to wheeled divan, thus returned the king-emperor's anniversary greetings by extending full recognition to Italian sovereignty over Ethiopia.

The Holy Father was in excellent spirits as he granted audiences to distinguished prelates who came to extend congratulations.

A fairly comfortable night's rest and the fact that his attacks of pain were growing less gladdened the anniversary for the Pontiff.

Visitors noticed that furrows of his face and his pallor betrayed the efforts of many weeks of serious illness.

The hands of the three sections of the College of Cardinals presented best wishes in the name of all the princes of the Church.

Cardinal Pacelli, Secretary of State, and Monsignor Joseph Costa, high, new section of Catholic University at Washington, D. C., also were received by the Holy Father.

Monsignor Corrigan was the second American to be granted an audience since the Pope became ill. The first was Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia before he sailed as Papal legate to the Eucharistic congress in Manila.

Edward to Go Home, Receive New Title

London, Feb. 12 (INS)—Official intimation of completion of letters patent giving him His Royal Highness Sir Edward Windsor have just been received by the Duke of Windsor at Enzesfeld Castle, in Austria, the London Daily Express said today in a dispatch from Vienna.

The paper said the duke, who is expected to be introduced to the House of Lords by one of his brothers, and another duke, must take an oath of allegiance and sign the roll of the House in the same way as any other peer who receives a new title.

Boy's Kidnaper Found—It's Himself

New York, Feb. 12 (INS)—Interviews very much disgusted today abandoned a kidnap hunt for 18-year-old Joseph M. Dunbar. His mother received an anonymous letter, asking $5000 ransom.

Hours later Joseph turned up. Police said he explained that he had lost his week's wages, $12, in a dice game, and had written the ransom note himself.

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International and all other rights reserved.)

It appears that Brooklyn still clings fondly to the Lavender and old lace days, and ways.

We note that Mr. Harry Halperin, a resident of the borough beyond the tubes, was dismissed from this mortal coil the other night in a manner highly reminiscent of the long ago.

Damon Runyon

Mr. Halperin was taken for a ride. Nothing could be quainter in this era.

He was lured into an automobile by a couple of chaps who did not love him, and driven to a spot in the heart of downtown Brooklyn, and within 150 feet of an orphanage of which Mr. Halperin's own 6-year-old son is an inmate.

There Mr. Halperin was suddenly ejected from the auto and deftly exterminated with pistol bullets as he lay on the ground. The incident was witnessed by children of the orphanage, and by students of a nearby college, and the cops say it was an extremely audacious transaction.

The chaps who did not love Mr. Halperin drove away, and at last report had not been apprehended. In fact, at last report, an incredible number of chaps who figured in similar incidents in the past ten years in Brooklyn, and other boroughs of the big city, had not been apprehended.

Little Mourning

There will be no great general sorrow over the passing of Mr. Halperin.

We had casual acquaintance with him in life, and we did not deem him a character of any great personal magnetism, or charm, nor was he especially prepossessing in personal appearance.

He had but a single eye, the other having been knocked out some years ago in a bit of extemporaneous target practice, in which Mr. Halperin was the target. Somebody was always using Mr. Halperin as a target, but aside from the inconvenience of absenting himself from the marts of commerce for long periods, and being put to the expense of some large hospital bills, Mr. Halperin managed to keep alive.

He used to be a prize fighter, an occupation from which he derived the title of "Knockout" Halperin, though we do not recall that Mr. Halperin achieved any great fistic renown.

Of late years he had been accounted a bit of a racket fellow in Brooklyn dealing in loan sharking, and other matters, varying the monotony of a hum-drum business career by occasional command appearances at police stations to answer questions about the demise of fellow citizens, such as "Ruby, the Mock."

"Ride" Out of Style

Indeed, but for the old-fashioned means employed for the expunging of Mr. Halperin, his going would be scarcely worthy of any comment whatever. He had little rank or reputation beyond his own neighborhood.

He comes to our attention only because he serves to revive a memory of a bygone day when the ride was a popular pastime in certain circles in this country. It went out of style as the price of gas steadily increased.

The ride is said to have been invented in Chicago along the mid-twenties for the special benefit of one Mr. Johnny Dougherty of Philadelphia.

When the history of the hard characters of America is written, we think some little attention should be paid to this Mr. Dougherty. Off hand, we would say that if Mr. Dougherty was not the hardest character that ever lived, he was at least entitled to place, or show.

He journeyed to Chicago at the behest of fellow citizens of the Quaker City, who desired him to look up a Mr. Dion O'Banion out there, and give him their kind regards, and then kill him. The Philadelphians did not love Mr. O'Banion, a chubby, jovial young fellow who flourished mightily, if briefly, out Chicago way.

Glad to Take Spin

Unfortunately for Mr. Dougherty, the friends of Mr. O'Banion got an inkling of his mission, and one day they invited him to go for an automobile ride.

Mr. Dougherty was glad to accept, because it seems he had just quietly effaced a lady who had accompanied him on the journey to Chicago and he wanted to do something to take his mind off this incident.

A gentleman who perhaps spoke from hearsay once told us that as Mr. Dougherty was riding along trying to think of something more cheerful than the subject of his recent effacement of the lady, suddenly sensed the purpose of the ride and began right tartly talking to the several persons who were accompanying him as his hosts.

The gentleman said that, beginning with A and running right on down to Z, Mr. Dougherty called them all the names in the alphabet.

Then he started at Z and went back up to A and called them many names not even in the alphabet. He told them they did not have the nerve to kill him.

Etiquette Lacking

"He was as tough," the gentleman said, "that he had them all completely bulldozed for a while. You see, it was the first ride in history, and they didn't know how to act. There were no rules then, so they just sat there and listened to Mr. Dougherty cast reflections upon their ancestry, on their immediate families, on themselves, and even on Chicago."

The gentleman rather implied that this was the last straw. Mr. Dougherty's hosts did not mind what he called them, but when he got to speaking in irreverent terms of their home town they had to do something.

"Give me that," said one loyal Chicagoan, seizing a pistol from the reluctant hand of a companion, and then, bing-bing-bing, Mr. Dougherty had passed into history as the first man taken for a ride.

It became a Chicago fashion, and soon spread all over the country. For several years one of the hazards of strolling along auto roads was sudden impact of all that was mortal of somebody being hurled from a passing car.

Then the Easterners discovered that it was much cheaper to catch 'em sitting in back rooms, and in barber chairs, and the ride went out of style.

Times must be getting good in Brooklyn again when they can afford to go back to the ride.

HOSPITAL EVILS 'HORRIFY' LEGISLATORS, ORDER SIFT

special commission to study institutional problems would be reported to the Legislature.

"After this, I do not believe that one of us could rest until these conditions are cleaned up," he said. "We have been granted funds to investigate every State institution, and that we will do I believe I speak for all of the committee."

ACTION INEVITABLE

"We shall make a thorough examination of all of the hospitals and schools mentioned in your newspaper yesterday and see for ourselves what can be done. Something must be done."

The conditions referred to by Senator Mackay were the disclosures by Public Safety Commissioner Paul Kirk that at least 15 state institutions were "firetraps" and that many of them were unsanitary and overcrowded.

This report was published exclusively in the Boston Evening American.

First institution to be surveyed was the Boston State Hospital, under fire for the past week, but now in the process of reorganization of staff and administration, under direction of a new board of trustees and its superintendent, Dr. Harold F. Norton.

DEMAND FOR PROBE

Other institutions include the Wrentham State School, State hospitals at Worcester, Taunton, Medfield, Northampton, Danvers, Gardner, Lyman, Monson, Westboro, Belchertown State School and Templeton Colony (Holyoke-town), Metropolitan State Hospital and Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

If the Legislature authorizes this special duty, it will do so in response to the inaugural appeal of Governor Hurley, who recommended that such a step was vital for the welfare of the state charges.

MORE REPORTS DUE

The Governor waited today for reports from the State Public Health Department experts, who were ordered to Wrentham State School to examine all inmates after his own personal visit there, and after a prolonged questioning of the Wrentham trustees last night. He spent five hours there.

Promising to make public what he had learned as soon as medical data were compared, the governor plans to extend this probe to many if similar abuses had occurred in other state institutions.

NOT COMPLETED

In connection with his visit to the Wrentham school, he issued the following statement:

"The investigation of alleged immoral conditions at Wrentham State school has not been completed.

"Before issuing a full report I am awaiting a medical report based on an examination now being made by physicians in the employ of the department of health.

"However, it developed during the examination of witnesses at the conference that the 'suspicions of immorality' and disease has been in the minds of many at Wrentham for some time, that such acts actually occurred and were not even reported or made part of the record until my examination brought them to light.

"My investigation is being made as a result of a resolve filed at Wednesday's meeting of the executive council.

"Thus far my investigation has revealed that the 'suspicions of immorality' had not been seriously considered as a subject important enough to make a record of it.

PATIENTS CONCERN

"My only concern in the present situation are the patients and their families. They are the charges of the Commonwealth and their welfare and proper care is the chief issue involved."

Governor Hurley and his staff left for Wrentham immediately after he had sworn in the five new trustees of Boston State Hospital at Mattapan.

Just being sworn in the new trustees went into session at once, voted their confidence in Dr. Harold Norton, the superintendent whose charges brought the situation there into the open and started him once on their program of reorganization.

The food problem at the Mattapan institution was the first to be tackled and the trustees voted that 30 cents a day be spent per patient for food instead of the 20 cents now spent and that special diets be provided.

Meanwhile the governor and members of his staff were speeding to Wrentham and arrived at the school soon after 6 p. m.

Two witnesses were immediately questioned secretly and the party then adjourned for supper, resuming the probe later.

None of the names of witnesses questioned was made known but stenographers took down all the questions and answers during the nearly five hours of investigation.

In addition to Governor Hurley and Superintendent C. Stanley Raymond, those present at the meeting included the following trustees: Chairman Francis Powers of Worcester; Frank J. Nersesy, of Attleboro; Mrs. John M. Morrison, of Brookline, secretary; Judge James A. Mutell, of Quincy, and Warren J. Swett, of Canton.

While the questioning was being carried on, inmates of the school were being examined by Dr. N. A. Nelson, assistant director of the department of communicable diseases, and Dr. Thomas Cavanagh of the state department of public health.

The investigation revealed that the nine affected inmates had contracted the disease since entering the institution.

Superintendent Raymond declared that reports of the condition had been sent to the public health department, but no report had been made to either department or the trustees of the alleged immoral acts because there was no proof of them existing.

Several inmates who were among those questioned are reported to have confessed to the alleged acts.

There's a little Abe Lincoln at the Bianchi home in Murdock street, Brighton.

The gentleman made his appearance at 11:30 a. m. today and what name could be more appropriate or more inspiring than that of Abraham Lincoln? And what better reason for calling him "Abe" inasmuch as the lad was born on the anniversary of the birth of the great emancipator.

For facts about the Abe Lincoln with a Bianchi to complete it, of February 12, 1937, he weighs six pounds, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bianchi, Dad is a taxi driver. Baby Abe has a sister, Frances, 18 months, mother, who is 20, was born on May 30, Memorial Day, and Dad's birthday falls on November 11, on which day we celebrate the armistice.

Little Abe was presented to the Bianchis by Dr. William J. Thompson of Allston.

And mother, as do all parents, wants her son to grow up and be President of the United States.

GERARDI DENIES HE'S BIG SHOT IN DOPE RACKET

"I'm not a 'big shot' in the racket, not a 'big pedlar,'"

So declared "Little Danny" Gerardi, ex-convict and dope pedlar, when he was arraigned today before Commissioner Harry N. Gutterman in federal court on charges of dispensing and distributing a quantity of opium.

Assistant United States Attorney Henry M. Leen, "pinch-hitting" for Assistant United States Attorney William T. McCarthy, who is in Washington, D. C., with Massachusetts authorities planning for a drive on dope distributors here, immediately asked a continuance.

"I ask for a continuance of one week on the ground that the government has not finished its investigation," said Leen. "On the question of bail for this defendant, I ask that bail be prohibitive, $15,000."

Commissioner Guterman said he could not make the bail prohibitive.

"I'm only concerned with the defendant," said the court.

Gerardi, without counsel, remonstrated.

"The last time I was here I was let out on $1000 personal bail and came back when wanted," said Gerardi. "They've been calling me a big shot; yes, they accused me of being a big peddler. Why, all I've got is a coat to my back."

The court fixed bail at $5000 and continued the case for hearing February 19.

Rose Nolan of New York, the woman arrested by the police and federal narcotic agents in a raid on a Carver street house, was arraigned later. Leen asked that she be released in $1000 personal bail until February 19. The court accepted and she was released.

PLAN TO SPLIT COURT BILL IN SENATE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 12—Friends and foes of President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court today were digging legislative trenches on Capitol Hill in anticipation of a long battle over its enactment.

Opponents of the plan were organizing to divide from the Supreme Court features from the remainder of the President's bill for reforming the federal judiciary. They believed they faced a better chance of whipping the Supreme Court enlargement if its authorization were separated from the other reforms, which are universally popular.

There were some signs the opposition might succeed in their program. A private poll of the Senate judiciary committee showed it would vote for such a division, as advocated by Senator Van Nuys (D), Indiana, leader of the opposition. A partial poll of the House judiciary committee also indicated that group would favor separation.

Administration leaders, meanwhile, ordered a poll of the House as the President cast know where the House stands. This for the many representatives and senators have been non-committal to reveal the outcome of either House or Senate.

The President, continuing in the driver's seat, was staging a session. A partial poll of the House with members of Congress ahead of his visitors came away grimly tight-lipped, answering questions with a brief, "No comment."

Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska insurgent, proved an exception. He flatly declared on "Issued the wisdom of the President's plan and proposed a Constitutional amendment, limiting the terms of Supreme Court justices to a fixed number of years.

After conferring with Mr. Roosevelt, Norris said:

"I would prefer some other plan but I am not irrevocably opposed to the President's plan. Present conditions are intolerable with the courts legislating instead of Congress. I believe the legislation which has been advanced by the administration is necessary for the salvation of the country. If it can't pass the courts, then I favor an constitutional thing (that is necessary) to get it past the courts.

SAYS ITS CONSTITUTIONAL

"The President's plan is constitutional. The trouble with it is that it does not get to the fundamentals of the problem and the same trouble might arise again in the next few years.

"I would prefer to have a seven-to-two majority required before the court could invalidate any act of Congress. That would be a more permanent remedy. So, too, would a constitutional amendment, fixing a definite term for Supreme Court justices, instead of the present system that gives them unlimited power for life."

Representative Sumners (D), of Texas, House judiciary chairman, promised early action on the judicial reform bill, withdrawing from debate Wednesday at the White House's request.

Sumners announced he would visit the President to learn his objections to the bill which would give the attorney-general the right to intervene in federal district courts in cases involving the constitutionality of federal legislation and provide a direct appeal or adverse decision to the Supreme Court.

FARMERS AGAINST IT

The President had recommended these reforms in his message but did not include them in his bill.

Senator Van Nuys, Senate leader of the opposition, announced that protests against enactment of the President's program were being received from farmers, after the final ways had come from lawyers and business men. He said:

"We are now receiving a world of letters from individual farmers. The man who tills the field is against any tinkering with the Supreme Court."

Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the Senate, agreed with Van Nuys' prediction. McNary anticipates strong opposition to develop among state granges and other farm organizations.

Leaders of the opposition bloc in the Senate claimed "from 41 to 42" members of that body now definitely committed against the President's plan to increase the court membership in a possible total of 35 justices. A majority of the Senate is 49.

COURT CHANGE HIT BY YOUNG ATTORNEYS

By a vote of 424 to 82 members of the Boston Bar Association under 37 years old have balloted against President Roosevelt's attempt to enlarge membership of the United States Supreme Court.

Results of the post-card poll were announced today on the following question:

"I do (do not) favor that portion of the Judiciary Reorganization Bill which empowers the President to enlarge the membership of the Supreme Court of the United States to a total not exceeding 15."

SINGLE BODY

In a statement accompanying announcement of the post-card poll results the Junior Bar Committee, sponsor of the poll, declared:

"The ostensible reason for the President's request for enlargement of the Supreme Court is to increase its efficiency. The court, however, acts as a single body, all justices hearing every argument and participating together in every decision.

"The suggestion that this work can be better discharged by a cumbersome group of 12 or 15 is ill considered.

"The relation between age and judicial capacity is at best controversial.

"The charge that the present court is so overwhelmed with business that it does not administer full justice to private litigants is wholly refuted by the official report of the solicitor-general, made public within the week.

CHANGE VIEWS

"The purpose of the proposal is everywhere known and acknowledged—to change the present Supreme Court so that its views will be in accord with those of the present administration."

Members of the special committee include Charles F. Dunbar, chairman; Ernest G. Angevine, Talcott M. Banks, Jr., Joseph K. Collins, Richard H. Field, Paul B. Sargent, Arthur L. Sherin and C. Russell Walton.

Alexander Denounces Court Reform

CALLS PLAN ILLEGAL

By EDWARD A. ALEXANDER

Noted Constitutional Lawyer and Member of the Federal Bar Association of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey

It seems to me that the bill which has been introduced in Congress for the purpose of reorganizing the Supreme Court is in violation of Article III of the U. S. Constitution.

The bill was introduced to carry out the wishes of the President expressed in his message to the Congress.

Under the guise of suggesting to it a Congress a new method for remedying the law's delays, it obviously intended to rid the court of those judges whose decisions in New Deal legislation cases run counter to those of the President.

The suggestion of the President, even though it is sugar-coated with words which would disguise to the inexperienced and undiscerning his real intent, embodies a plain attempt to force judges over 70 years of age off the bench.

VIOLATES ARTICLE

This suggestion, which has been embodied in the proposed bill introduced in Congress for the purpose of carrying it out, would seem to violate Article III of the Constitution, which provides life tenure for a judge of the Supreme Court, and such a bill, if enacted into law, may be validly declared by the existing Supreme Court to be unconstitutional and void.

Any legislation by Congress, devised for the purpose of using means and methods to coerce any of the judges of the Supreme Court into retiring at the age of seventy, by humiliating them in declaring that at that age they are decrepit physically or mentally, or both, unable to properly perform their duties, making it necessary to appoint younger men to assist them or the court, will necessarily impair the right of these judges to hold their office during life and good behavior.

NO LIMIT TO TENURE

No legislation intended to coerce a judge who is entitled to hold his office for life, to give up his office during life, should be held to be constitutional.

The United States Constitution does not limit the tenure of the office of a judge of the Supreme Court to seventy years of life. The mandate of the people, as expressed in the Constitution, is life tenure, whether under seventy or over seventy.

Perhaps the President believes that in this respect the Constitution is out of date. Maybe it is. But if it should be, it is the people who have the power to amend it, and not the President or Congress.

In United States vs. Butler, 297 U. S. 1., the Supreme Court held that the AAA was unconstitutional because it was coercion by economic pressure.

Referring to a number of its previous opinions, the court held they demonstrated that Congress could not, under the pretext of raising revenue for the purpose of benefiting producers, lay a tax on processors who refused to pay a certain price for cotton, and exempt those who agreed to do so.

HAS NO POWER

In other words, what Congress has not the power to do by direct action under the Constitution, it may not do by indirect action.

In the case of the Supreme Court judges, any act of Congress containing provisions, the necessary and probable effect of which would be to coerce them in giving up their life tenure of office, should be declared by the court as unconstitutional.

Vance McCormick Urges Senate Bar Court 'Packing'

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 12 (INS)—Vance C. McCormick, former Democratic national chairman and prominent Harrisburg newspaper publisher, today urged the United States Senate to support legislation to oppose the legislation generally construed to mean the packing of the Supreme Court.

McCormick, one-time Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, dispatched the following telegram to a number of Democratic members of the Senate:

"As a Democrat and a newspaper publisher who supported the President in both of his campaigns, I hope very much you will oppose the legislation generally construed to mean the packing of the Supreme Court.

Union League Fight Cheers Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, told reporters today that President Roosevelt arose slightly indisposed this morning, but upon reading that the Union League Club of New York had adopted a resolution opposing his judicial reform plan "he immediately began to feel better."

"He showed an immediate improvement and it put him in a happy mood for the day's work," Early added.

The secretary said the newspaper account recalled to the President the boos aimed at him in Wall Street and at Harvard University during the campaign and he "hoped it was as good an omen."

500 IN HARVARD HIT COURT BILL

Bitterly opposed to President Roosevelt's proposed legislation providing additional justices on the Supreme Court bench, more than 500 undergraduates at Harvard Law School today signed a petition protesting passage of the bill.

The petition, circulated among the undergraduates and to be forwarded to the Senate judiciary committee, reads:

"We, the undersigned, members of the Harvard Law School, wish to convey our disapproval of the recent suggestion for increasing the members of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"We therefore urge the judiciary committee to report the proposed legislation unfavorably to the Senate."

G. M. SPEEDING MEN BACK TO JOBS

Michigan's red-headed governor, who kept General Motors and union officials together in conference for eight days before the agreement was finally reached and signed yesterday.

Murphy was showered with telegrams of congratulations, including wires from President Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Last night, for the first time in six weeks, the Governor went to the theatre. For the past six weeks he had been kept busy day and night as chief arbiter in the strike.

Late today, the Governor will leave for New York City to attend a dinner in his honor there Saturday, and then go on to Washington.

As Murphy left for the theatre, sit-down strikers who had held three General Motors plants in Flint evacuated peacefully amid scenes of wild celebrations.

STRIKERS PARADE

The first sit-downers to leave were those in Fisher Body Plant No. 1, then the stay-ins at Chevrolet No. 4, and Fisher No. 2. All left, all converging for a victory march through Flint's main streets.

An estimated crowd of between 10,000 and 15,000 persons joined in the festivities.

Flags waved, bands played, horns sounded a deafening roar and toy balloons and confetti were tossed into the air.

Meantime, the first of 4000 National Guardsmen on strike duty in Flint began leaving for their homes, and the city began returning to normalcy.

OFFICIALS PLEASED

General Motors officials indicated they were pleased at the quick evacuation.

Under terms of the agreement, the plants were to be evacuated in return for a General Motors agreement not to press action on a court writ which called for eviction and arrest of 137 union leaders and the sit-downers.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, announced as he directed the back-to-work parade:

"There is no crowing on either side—I hope not. What we think is most important is to get people back to work and the plants running again, because you know yourself that when a big machine is stopped and you have to monkey with the flywheel a bit before you get it going again. That flywheel has got to be tolerant. There must be a desire for peace and no animosity on either side."

GOVERNOR COMMENTS

Governor Murphy made a national figure as a result of his part in the strike, commenting:

"Here were people (the General Motors and the union officials) absolutely were determined not to meet with each other—but they did. Then in a day—a miracle—and a settlement satisfactory to new enlightened method of dealing with labor disputes—not by force, not by coercion, not by rioting but by merely sitting down and by prolonged conferences arriving at complete understanding."

He said he was particularly pleased, despite the fact three riots occurred at Flint, one of them resulting in the wounding of 13 persons, that there was no loss of life.

Impartial observers said it was miraculous that there was not more bloodshed since Flint had been held in the grip of one of the worst strikes of modern times for more than 40 days.

LEWIS JUBILANT

John L. Lewis, Committee for Industrial Organization chief, who came here nine days ago to "intensify the strike" only to be persuaded to sit down at the conference table "in accordance with the wish of the President," was jubilant over the settlement.

Today, incidentally, was Lewis' 57th birthday. There will be no celebration for him since he is held to his hotel suite by a severe cold.

Lewis said:

"The settlement establishes collective bargaining and security for the union. It institutes for the first time a rational relationship in the automotive industry."

Union Asks Five Auto Conferences

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 12 (USI)—With the signing of the General Motors strike agreements the United Automobile Workers union launched a new offensive in its drive to organize the workers of the auto industry.

To five manufacturers employing a total of 12,000 men, went a telegram from Richard T. Frankensteen, chief organizer for the union declaring:

"The U. A. W., upon request of employes of your plant, desire a conference at your convenience during the week of February 15 to peacefully negotiate certain grievances of said employes."

Governor Murphy To Be Given Medal

New York, Feb. 12 (INS)—Frank Murphy of Michigan, intermediary in the auto strike, will speak to-morrow night at the 40th anniversary banquet of the Irish-American Historical Society here.

He will be presented with a medal "in tribute to his eminent public service."

Flint Strikers and Militiamen Wildly Hail Auto 'Armistice Day'

Days of tension and suspicion ended in a burst of good-fellowship after the news of the strike settlement reached Flint, Michigan, "powder-keg" strike center. This young militiaman, who but a few minutes before, stood as a grim symbol of authority with bayoneted rifle, is now a "pal" to the jubilant strikers who crowd around him at his post outside a General Motors plant.

Wild cheers greet the news that the long-drawn motor strike has come to an end at Flint, Mich. After 44 days, the sit-down strikers, weary of keeping their long vigil, acclaim the news as read to them from newspapers in one of the General Motors plants. The information is being relayed to the men by Bud Simmons, chairman of the strike committee. This plant was immediately evacuated. This is an International News Soundphoto.

FLINT TROOPS COST MICHIGAN $300,000

Flint, Mich. Feb. 12 (AP)—The capital of the recent General Motors strike awaited today a second evacuation—that of 3500 national guardsmen—to hasten a return to normal after six wearying weeks.

Departure of hundreds of "stay-in" strikers from three plants late yesterday, six hours after an agreement ending the strike was signed in Detroit, brought the city its full realization that the siege of worry, idleness, restraint and privation was ending.

Conjecture over departure of the guardsmen, concentrated here a month ago after the first of two violent outbursts at union-seized plants, was freely heard. Reliable sources said it was possible some of the troops would be sent home today. Next information appeared to be that demobilization would be gradual.

The troopers stepped aside yesterday as unionists and union sympathizers celebrated termination of the protracted and costly dispute.

"SIT-INS" MARCH OUT

"Sit-downers" in Fisher plant No. 1—where the first strike in Flint began Dec. 30—were the first to march out after a unanimous vote on the agreement. Their withdrawal started a parade, accompanied by the din of auto horns, which moved on to Chevrolet plant No. 2, seized by strikers Feb. 1, and to Fisher plant No. 2, across the street, occupied on Dec. 30, along with No. 1.

Thousands joined in the celebration, which approached Armistice Day proportions. It was a cheering, singing throng, waving flags and banners and tossing confetti in the exuberance of release from weeks of tension.

National Guardsmen were withdrawn immediately from the factory area which had been patrolled for 12 days by 1200 troopers. The remainder of the guard ordered here was never called into service.

$300,000 MILITIA COST

At Lansing, state officials disclosed the special appropriation of $300,000 for keeping the troops in Flint would have been exhausted Monday.

Several situations reminded the city of the strike. It "was near 'pay day'" last night, 10,000 men would receive the first full pay envelopes since strife was in effect, the city relief load was at 10,000 cases, near the record figure of the siege of January, declared Monday night by the City Commission was in "secret at most, still in effect.

Civic and business leaders were stilled over dissolution of the deadlock, which caused profit-impairing 80 per cent of the city's wage earners and put heavily into the city's economic life.

Egypt Onion Sweep Comes a Cropper In Boston Mails

"It looks like a representation of Arabian hirsute or it may be a few hyperboles," said Chief Post-office Inspector John J. Breslin today as he attempted to decipher the Egyptian characters on a so-called Al-Mossani Sweepstake ticket before him.

According to Breslin a number of these Egyptian lottery tickets were received by men in the Faneuil Hall market concealed in yellowish envelopes that bore an engraved brown onion on the face. Printed in large letters are the words "Egyptian Onion Circular."

The tickets announce that the race to be held for the Al-Mossani Cup at Belle Meade Sporting Club on March 26, 1937, is authorized and supervised by the Egyptian government. The drawing will take place, according to the ticket, on March 10, 1937.

The envelopes in which the tickets were received by the marketmen came in the royal mail with Egyptian stamps, according to Breslin, who is investigating. Postal regulations forbid such type of mail. Thousands of the tickets have been seized, it was learned.

Roosevelt Happy Over Strike End

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was very happy over the General Motors strike settlement.

Asked to comment at his press conference, he said Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan had done a splendid job.

He refused to discuss the sit-down strike methods adopted by the workers.

G. E. IN LYNN BOOSTS WAGES

Lynn's General Electric Company plants today announced wage increases for 2650 shop workers amounting annually to $200,000.

The remaining 8000 employes will be granted raises as soon as a survey of piece work and salaried employes is completed and adjustments made it was also made known.

Nelson J. Darling, general manager of the two plants, made the announcement.

4-Month Strike Of Case Co. Ends

Racine, Wis., Feb. 12 (INS)—After four months of idleness workmen today readied the three plants of the J. I. Case Company for the renewal of operations as the result of the settlement of the United Automobile Workers' strike. The company, which manufactures farm machinery, agreed to recognize the United Automobile Workers' local as the bargaining agent for the 1800 employes who have been idle since picketing began. Some of the plants last October 12, and guaranteed a 10-cent general wage increase in April. If even further wage increases to be discussed by the bargaining committee.

110,000 To Get Pay Cuts Back

Albany, N. Y. Feb. 12 (AP)—Governor Lehman signed today three "emergency bills" clearing the way for restoration of pay cuts to 110,000 New York City employes, effective next July 1.

Kent's Physician Father of Twins

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—Dr. Alexander Gow, ph sician-in-ordinary to the Duke of Kent and the doctor who has signed the announcements of the birth of both the Kents' children, became the father to twins today.

SECRET FILES HIDDEN, SLEUTH TELLS SENATE

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Robert H. Peterson, a Pinkerton Detective Agency official, disclosed today he had removed "confidential papers" from the agency's files a few minutes after he learned they had been subpoenaed by the Senate Civil Liberties committee.

He told the committee a Senate agent served the subpoena on the Detroit headquarters August 12, 1936, and that a clerk at once passed "a few papers" through "a little cubby-hole" in a door connecting two rooms in the office.

Peterson said he had placed these documents in a brief-case and started to take them to his automobile, but was stopped by the committee investigator.

Later he managed to take certain papers to his home, he continued, but all were returned except "some personal papers which I destroyed."

After the incident, he said, Edward S. Clark, Cleveland division manager for Pinkerton, ordered him to "spend a few days at home" and to take all telephone calls there "on account of the subpoena."

Peterson said some of the documents originally taken were lists of secret operatives.

Fisher Body Plant Starts Full-Time Operation Today

Cleveland, O., Feb. 12 (AP)—Full-time operation of the Fisher body plant here will begin late today, officials announced, as other Ohio employes of the General Motors Corporation planned quick return to work in the factories at Toledo and Norwood, Cincinnati suburb.

Edward J. Gleason, assistant manager of the Cleveland plant, said production would begin on the afternoon (3 p. m. E. S. T.) shift, returning the employes to work considerably sooner than others of the 16,000 employed in the three cities.

"Our maintenance men went into the plant last night to inspect the machinery," Gleason said. "They found everything in fine shape. That means we can resume production at once."

Auto Unionists End Theater 'Sit-In'

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 12 (AP)—Members of the United Automobile Workers of America ended today their occupation of an Anderson theater, which they had entrenched themselves last night in a demonstration against city officials whom they accused of failing to give "civil protection for union assemblages."

The union members left for their own hall nearby after their leaders informed them the owner of the building had asked that they depart. There was no demonstration.

Several policemen were on duty around the theater. An automobile and that surrounded the building last night had dispersed several hours earlier.

Lewis Ill With Flu On 57th Birthday

Detroit, Feb. 12 (AP)—John L. Lewis observed his 57th birthday today, recovering from a mild attack of influenza. Mrs. Lewis was with him.

The militant chieftain of the Committee for Industrial Organization, kept to his hotel suite, although a member of his staff said he would not remain in bed. Under orders to "relax," he put aside all business.

Woman, 101, Who Saw Lincoln, Dies

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Laura Fisk Evans, 101, who saw Abraham Lincoln ride through the streets of the capital, died last night on the eve of the former President's birthday anniversary.

LEWIS FORCES MAP STEEL 'ZERO HOUR'

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 12—Counting the automobile strike settlement a victory now won, John L. Lewis and his CIO industrial union forces today fixed late March or early April as the zero hour for a frontal attack on the giant steel industry.

That attack will open with a convention of steel workers in Pittsburgh. At this meeting, for the first time in history acting as a unified, single body, steel workers will draft and present to employers a comprehensive program of increased wages and improved working conditions.

The Mayor has been a virtual dictator since Monday night.

One of the happiest men was Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott, relieved of a delicate situation by the settlement. He held writs for the arrest and eviction of the strikers under an injunction issued February 2, but had deferred action while awaiting a reply to his request for the aid of national guardsmen.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, told a union rally the settlement was "The greatest advance of any single event in the history of the labor movement."

George E. Boysen, head of the Flint Alliance, which opposed the strike, said in a statement the "strike brought gains to no one."

Most of the 40,000 or more General Motors employes in Flint were expected to resume work Monday, the remainder in a few days. Buick called 12,000 of its 16,000 employes back to work Monday.

A skeletonized program of demands has been worked out by Philip Murray, who has headed the CIO's organizing campaign in the steel industry for Lewis.

The organizing campaign has been under way for months, and leaders reported membership totals running past the 150,000 mark.

Less than 24 hours after the automobile strike settlement was made, the word was passed to CIO leaders that steel was next, and that the CIO will "move in" within 60 days.

Major objectives of the steel workers have been clearly outlined. Murray said, although he added that the details will have to be drafted and approved by the Pittsburgh convention.

The steel organizing campaign has been conducted through the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, and the Pittsburgh meeting will call in more than a thousand key men in this organization, Murray added.

Police and Pickets Clash at Detroit Kelvinator Plant

Detroit, Feb. 12 (INS)—While sit-down strikers held the main plant of the Nash-Kelvinator Company here, union pickets and police clashed at another small Detroit plant of the corporation today.

Fists were swung freely during the melee, but no one was taken to the hospital. The fights occurred in front of the small Fort street plant, which employs about 335 men. After 100 pickets mixed with a squad of 10 policemen, the pickets withdrew from the company's property to sidewalks fronting the building.

Springfield Auto Victim Is Dead

Springfield, Feb. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Frances C. Cartmill, 51, struck by an automobile last night, died today in a hospital of the multiple injuries suffered. She was crossing a street when struck by a car driven by Arnold Becker, according to police. The fatality is the second in this city this year.

LABOR DECISION BY MARCH 15

Washington, Feb. 12 (INS)—Supreme Court decisions on the constitutionality of the national labor relations and railway labor laws of the Roosevelt administration will be announced about March 15, court observers predicted today.

Six cases, involving many phases of both laws, were given the court for consideration late yesterday after 13 hours of argument, one of the most lengthy arguments in recent court history.

Although the forthcoming decisions in the labor relations cases are regarded as of momentous importance, it is possible that the whole subject may not be answered in the cases before the court.

In such case the National Labor Relations Board ordered firms to reinstate employes on the ground they were discharged because of union activity.

The important questions of whether the law can be applied to force companies to negotiate with unions named by the board, or whether the closed shop can be enforced are not involved in the cases, government lawyers contended.

GIRL IN CLASH AT TRIAL OF BRENNAN

Clashing with counsel as she resumed the witness stand today, Miss Mary B. Cronin, former secretary to Attorney John J. Brennan, entered a storm in superior court at Brennan's trial.

Brennan, Boston lawyer and former Somerville alderman, is charged with having an indecency in larceny and forgery allegedly committed by Miss Cronin.

Last week Miss Cronin pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence against the man to whom she testified yesterday, she had become engaged in 1936.

Under cross-examination today by Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for her former employer, Miss Cronin suddenly stopped her testimony and complained that she felt she was being tried, "instead of the defendant."

JUDGE ENTERS QUIZ

Judge Abraham E. Pinanski immediately halted proceedings.

"Don't you think you are getting fair treatment from the court?" Judge Pinanski asked the witness.

"Yes, but I'm not getting anything from the district attorney," she replied.

The judge reminded her that she was under cross-examination and he explained the procedure of cross-examination. Calmly, Miss Cronin turned back toward Attorney Callahan and the questioning was resumed.

She then denied that she had forged Brennan's name to a check from the acting State's marshal's office and had cashed it in Medford.

IDENTIFIES CHECK

Shown a check by Callahan, she identified signatures on the document as those of Brennan, herself and a Medford storekeeper. She declared that Brennan had driven her to the store to cash the check.

The witness testified, under further cross-examination, that Brennan had told her one insurance case had been settled, and this was why she had told the plaintiff in the suit that it had been settled.

WATERS PERIL NEW ORLEANS

Memphis Tenn., Feb. 12 (AP)—Forces of rehabilitation followed sluggish crests down the Mississippi today while sandbags gave New Orleans a taste of flood troubles.

The valley's largest city felt the first direct effects of the Mississippi's record burden early today. Water bubbling through a large sandbag submerged three square blocks of wharf area to a depth of 18 inches.

Hundreds of laborers hurriedly sandbagged the leak and no major levee threat was seen in the flow caused by the pressure forcing water through low soil strata beneath the dikes. The affected territory was more than 20 blocks from the city's main business district.

The big river crept toward record heights along the lower valley levees but created no major crisis.

"Only some unforeseen act of God can change this situation now," said Col. John C. H. Lee, army engineer, after an inspection near Helena, Ark., where the river crested at 50.35 feet.

Above Helena the river was falling slowly but steadily. Levee workers could not relax their vigilance, however, for the recession was so sluggish that seepage and sandboils remained a constant threat.

An inkling of the river's burden was given by the Columbia, Ohio, weather bureau, which reported it showed that in January there was almost 28 billion tons of rainfall in that state alone. The figure is the flood zone had abnormal precipitation.

Lindberghs Land In Egypt Desert

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 12 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, en route to Cairo from Tripoli, landed at Mersa Matrouh in the western desert at 5:35 p. m. Greenwich time, today (10:35 a. m. E. S. T.).

They said they intended to remain overnight in the town which is approximately 200 miles from Cairo.

'Press Gag' Bill Dies in Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 12 (AP)—Tennessee's "press gag" bill has met the death its author, Senator Fletcher R. Morgan, Chattanooga attorney, predicted for it.

The judiciary committee of the House of Representatives killed the measure that the Senate had passed, 29 to 1, after a public hearing last night.

The bill provided that publication in a newspaper editorial page of "any untruth about a person would subject the editor or publisher, or both, to a lifetime expulsion from Tennessee journalism, in addition to fines and damages.

All Lines Go

Faris Roberts was re-elected vice-president of the school board by a vote of 321 to 0. J. H. Noxon was re-elected mayor by a vote of 258 to 0.

Roberts is a Democrat, Noxon a Republican.

Other guests who will appear, according to Commander Abraham Eckleberg, are Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., Dr. William P. Ryan, state commander of the American Legion, Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn, Major Ralph W. Robart, Frederick W. Enright, and Charles H. Hastings.

HOPKINS TELLS HOW WPA FITS MANY FOR JOBS

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Fitting the unemployed for jobs in private industry, Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said today, has been one of three principles of the Federal work relief program.

"We had to give the jobless the kind of work which would preserve, restore or increase their working ability, and thus make them better competitors for private jobs," he said in making a 110-page summary of information on which officials based the program.

The other two objectives of the Works Progress Administration, Hopkins said, were "to give people work" and "to give each community the sort of public improvements and services which its officials wanted."

ONE-THIRD WOMEN

The summary showed 6,402,000 persons were eligible for WPA jobs at the start of 1936, when it was prepared.

This total, he said, does not mean the WPA could have employed all 6,402,000, even if appropriations were sufficient, because of rules which forbid hiring more than one worker in any family.

More than one third of the total were women, and nearly four-fifths of the male workers were heads of families. They represented 160 occupational classifications.

Hopkins pointed to the total of more than 840,000 totally inexperienced eligibles as illustrative of the task involved in providing useful projects. Over half of that group were boys and girls seeking jobs for the first time.

WIVES SOUGHT JOBS

Of the 300,000 over 25, many were housewives with family responsibilities who were trying, Hopkins said, to get jobs in an attempt to keep their families together.

There were 618,000 persons experienced only in domestic and personal service work, and 110,000 retail store sales clerks. There were 240,000 office workers, 960,000 unskilled laborers, and 435,000 farm laborers.

In the "unusual" classification, 28 women listed themselves as "deliverymen" and 282 men were termed "housedresses."

There also were four female auto mechanics, 24 feminine truck and tractor drivers and 29 female bootblacks. Under the heading of dressmakers and milliners were 474 men.

Social Security Act Faces New Test in U. S. Court Here

Arguments to determine the constitutionality of Title 8 of the Social Security Acts tarted in federal court today on the appeal of George P. Davis of Waltham, as a stockholder in the Edison Electric Illuminating Company.

Davis seeks to enjoin the Edison Electric Illuminating Company from paying taxes which are levied under Title 8. This phase of the law makes it mandatory for employers to pay a tax on their employes.

The appeal is being heard before Judges Scott M. Wilson, George H. Bingham and James M. Morton, Jr., in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

On January 27 Judge George C. Sweeney had ruled the act constitutional. Davis had previously attacked the unemployment provisions of the same act as a stockholder in the Boston & Maine Railroad, but a decision in that petition, also upheld the law.

The appeal made on this decision is now under advisement.

Elks to Honor Ex-Gov. Sholtz

The annual banquet of the Massachusetts State Elks Association in honor of former Governor David Sholtz of Florida and exalted ruler of the order, will be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel February 16.

Governor Hurley and Mayor Mansfield, both Elks, will head the list of dignitaries including Past Grand Exalted Ruler James R. Nicholson, Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley of the Federal Housing Board.

A special feature will be the presentation of the James R. Nicholson trophy to the Massachusetts team showing the most precision in the condition of the Elks' initiatory ritual. Past Grand Exalted Ruler Nicholson will make the presentation.

President John F. Burke of the state association and Edward Devin head the committee in charge of arrangements.

High Chair Sit-Downers

Neponset, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP)—Imbued with the "sit-down" idea, some youngsters traipsed into C. T. Higgins drug store, demanding fre candy and chewing gum.

Frustrated by Higgins' refusal to go along on collective bargaining, they finally surrendered the seats they had held down all day.

reviews. In other cities and towns National Guard units participated in parades and reviews.

As the observance opened here, army officials stated this year's program would surpass any of the four preceding years.

During the ten days newspapers, theaters and special speakers will aid in depicting the vital functions of the army, navy and air corps in time of peace as well as in war days.

The national program, which will include coast-to-coast broadcasts in which exponents of national preparedness, including General Malin Craig, chief of staff of the United States Army, will be heard, is in charge of Chaplain Walter J. Gardner of Lincoln, Neb.

BAY STATE LEADERS

The First Corps area celebration, which includes the six New England States, is in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel John W. Keveney of Short Pier, N. H.

Activities of the Massachusetts department are being handled by Lieutenant Roger T. Bullock of New Bedford.

Members of the Massachusetts committee include: Major Leon O. Cox, of Boston; Lieut.-Col. Leon A. Mendell, Metropolitan Medical Chapter; Captain Theodore Metcombe, of Boston; Major Louis H. Bell, Major Philip R. Corbett, Captain Carl O. Zimmerman, Captain Hunter B. McKay, Captain Brendan D. Leahy, Captain Philip G. Sherman, Captain Harold W. McCann, Captain Francis W. Cronin, Captain Joseph C. Newland, Captain John F. Somers and Major Frederick H. Chase.

This committee is working throughout the state, stressing the fact that the Reserve Officers' Association does not urge an armament program of a size that would allow the nation to be labelled militaristic.

They urge only an adequate national defense, especially in view of the fact that the United States has not been abreast of other nations in building the national defense in recent years.

From 1921 to 1932, the country did not increase its naval or land forces, despite the fact that it promote the cause of disarmament, it was said.

It is reported that during the observance of Defense Week there will be some 4000 demonstrations throughout the nation, while during the celebration, the legislative program of the Reserve Officers' Association will be emphasized. The program provides:

PROGRAM PROVISIONS

1—Two weeks of summer training for 30,000 reserve officers instead of 22,500 as now authorized.

2—A full year of training for 200 reserve officers annually in army service schools.

3—Annual enrollment of 1000 newly-commissioned reserve lieutenants, of whom 50 would be taken into the regular army at the end of each year.

A feature of this year's celebration will be the annual banquet of the association in Washington next February 19.

Included among the speakers will be Secretary of War Woodring, General Craig, Chairman Sheppard, of the Senate Military Committee, and Chairman Hill of the House Military Committee.

Bugles, Drums Mark Defense Week Start

Washington, Feb. 12 (USA)—With a blare of bugles and roll of military drums, National Defense Week was inaugurated throughout America at dawn today.

Beginning on the anniversary of the birth of Lincoln and concluding on Washington's birthday, the ten days will be dedicated to preparing to the people of the country the necessity for strengthening national defense.

FOUR YEARS OLD

From humble beginnings four years ago, defense week has rapidly become one of the major periods on the calendar of military affairs in the country.

Although the national plan is developed by the reserve officers association, with headquarters in Washington, observation of the week is sponsored locally in each community.

At all regular army posts and naval bases special reviews are held for the public. In towns and hamlets serving national guard units, parades and reviews are held.

One of the major divisions in the military displays is presented by reserve officers' organizations.

The opening ceremonies in the nation's Capitol were to be marked by services at the Lincoln Memorial on the banks of the Potomac river, under auspices of the Veteran Legion.

For three days beginning February 18, the national council of the Reserve Officers Association will be held in Washington.

Few Friends, Few Drinks, Then Kelly Is in a N. Y. Cell

Few were there today who would have liked to be in the origins of Joseph Kelly of Dorchester as he looked through steel bars in New York.

Kelly, 30 years old and a shipworn after his day and night, was arraigned today in a magistrate's court after a tavern keeper complained Kelly owed him $1.45 for 10 glasses of beer and some corned beef and cabbage.

But Kelly said he wanted to know where his car was and how did he get from the Bowery to Brooklyn—like that.

To Magistrate Nicholas Pinto the Dorchester man, the patrolman explained that he merely went to New York for a little fun, met some friends on the Bowery, had a few drinks in a tavern and discovered his car was missing from in front of the place.

His new-found friends patted him on the back and told him not to worry. And the next thing Kelly knew, he woke up in a cell.

He will have another arraignment tomorrow.

Striking Cabbies Clash With Police

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP)—Cab strikers and police clashed in a pitched battle here today when 20 strike-breaking taxis dashed from the Yellow Cab Company's garage amid a shower of bricks, stones and empty milk bottles.

The officers used their nightsticks freely. Pickets hit the pavement in every section of the battle area. Two patrol wagon loads of strikers were arrested.

Artillery Forces Primed for Nation's Defense

These snappy members of Headquarters' Battery, Ninth Coast Artillery, shown at drill, are poised for instant attack upon any enemy who might attempt to invade America. They are attached to Fort Banks, Winthrop, and are observing National Defense Week, beginning today.

Moffett looks out over the ocean as the Stars and Stripes wave in the winter winds. Eyes of the nation today were focused on the navy as National Defense Week opened.

DEMANDS CASH FOR SEWERS

Mayor Mansfield today, for the third time in five weeks, submitted to the City Council appropriation orders totalling $782,026 for sewerage works in Boston this year.

The orders have twice been rejected by the council with the request that the mayor allot the money for specific purposes, stating definitely how much will be used for Works Progress Administration projects and how much will be used for other types of sewer work.

In resubmitting the appropriation orders today the mayor declined to take the responsibility for definitely allotting the money for specific purposes, and stated that the councillors themselves have authority under the law to make such allotment. The mayor agreed to give his approval to any such allotments.

Cooley Lauds Bill to Give U. S. Needy Surplus Fish

A bill calling for the purchase by the government of the surplus of fish for needy families was lauded today by Edward H. Cooley, manager of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, upon his return from Washington.

Cooley and former Governor Louis G. Brann of Maine left for the capitol two weeks ago to urge the passage of such a bill.

Today Cooley said the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee reported favorably on the bill and that it would go to the House soon.

"This is not an attempt on the part of the fishing industry to unload cold storage fish in large quantities," Cooley said.

"Farmers for years have been getting the benefit of government assistance in disposal of surplus farm products and during that time fishermen have held back their products.

"But now there is a demand for food for the needy, especially in the flood regions."

Married Teachers Must Repay Lynn

Married school teachers in Lynn who conceal their marriage and remain working will have to reimburse the city for the salary they receive from the time of their wedding day.

This was the ultimatum laid down to the shoe city school ma'ams today by Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn. A survey was underway to determine status of teachers on the marital question, under the direction of Deputy Superintendent of Schools Ernest Stephens.

Gloucester Court Reinstates Officer

Gloucester, Feb. 12—Reserve Officer William S. Campbell of Gloucester, who stands at top place on the list for regular police appointment, was reinstated today by Judge Lincoln R. Simonds reversing the decision of the Municipal Council which discharged him on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer.

30-Mile Moving Ice Monster Nears Alaskan House

Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 12 (AP)—Black Rapids glacier, an icy monster 30 miles long, two miles wide and 200 feet thick, gouged its way today to within a mile of a roadhouse on Alaska's main highway.

At its present phenomenal rate of flow—half a mile a day—the glacier will crumple the roadhouse like a fragile toy and obliterate a segment of the highway within a few days, said Dr. Otto Geist, curator of the University of Alaska. The scientist flew over the glacier in a plane to watch its movement.

Mammoth blocks of ice tumbled from the face of the advancing ice wall today, shaking timbers in the roadhouse, where Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Revell and their son, Harry, waited, hoping they would not have to flee.

Until two weeks ago the glacier was six miles away and slowly receding. Then an earthquake changed it overnight from an almost motionless mass to a rumbling menace.

KEY DIPLOMAT SHAKEUP NEAR

Washington, Feb. 12 (INS)—A shakeup in the diplomatic corps which may affect several key positions, was indicated today by President Roosevelt.

The President, disclosing a contemplated series of changes in his diplomatic setup for the first time in three years, said he would consult with Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the move within a week.

While the President gave no hint of the actual positions which might be involved, confident diplomatic observers sketched the probable changes as follows.

Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, who has been in Cuba since 1933, is expected to be moved to Brazil to replace Gibson.

Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, who recently was sent to Moscow to replace William Bullitt, now ambassador to France, may be shifted to one of the other major European capitals.

A minister to Denmark must be appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde.

There may be a change in the position held by Claude G. Bowers as ambassador to Spain.

Flier Risks Life To Aid 2 in Desert

Pocatello, Ida., Feb. 12 (INS)—Boldly risking his own life, Ralph Knapp, Pocatello aviator, today landed his ski-equipped plane in a narrow lava defile to succor two men, stranded and menaced by coyotes in a snowbound Idaho desert. He carried food and medical supplies to last the men until arrival of overland rescue crews.

FISHER ELECTION MAY REOPEN BRUNO CASE

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 12 (AP)—Reopening of the celebrated Lindbergh kidnaping case is a possibility, the Trenton Times reported today. If C. Lloyd Fisher, counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, becomes the new Hunterdon County prosecutor.

Fisher, steadfast defender of Hauptmann's innocence, is favored for the post, the paper said, by Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who likewise questioned the justice of Hauptmann's conviction.

Hoffman will shortly appoint a successor to Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, who helped present the state's case against Hauptmann at Flemington. Hauck's term expires April 27.

Fisher, one of Hunterdon County's leading lawyers, is an counsellor-at-law, prerequisite for the prosecutorship, but the Times said such obstacles had been surmounted in the past when the state Supreme Court granted special examinations to permit qualification.

Trustee Bill Killed

After Senator Joseph R. Cotton contended that confusion would result if 2,000,000 depositors had to meet every year or two to elect trustees, the State Senate killed the bill seeking to authorize depositors of savings banks to elect their own trustees.

Kelly Bills Defeated

Bills for popular election of members of the state racing commission and the board of public utilities commissioners were rejected by the legislative committee on state administration.

Both measures were sponsored by Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly.

5 Rescued in Fire Near Dedham Jail

Trapped by fire which broke out in the home in County street, Dedham, in the rear of the Norfolk County jail, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fiddel, their two children, and a house guest, were carried down ladders to safety by firemen today.

Mrs. Fiddel was awakened by the smell of smoke in her second floor bedroom and aroused the other members of her family and her guest, Miss Elizabeth Seaif, of Dedham. She flung open a window and started to scream for help, her cries arousing guards and inmates in the nearby jail and creating excitement throughout the neighborhood.

Her husband, meanwhile, telephoned an alarm to Dedham fire headquarters and in a few minutes apparatus arrived with ladders to bring them to safety. Cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

PRIVATE BURIAL SERVICES FOR C. H. BLAINE

Brief private funeral services will be held at an unannounced date for Charles H. Blaine, retired S. S. Pierce Company executive.

Aged 79, he died at his home in Beacon street, Back Bay. Interment will be in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Taunton.

A native of New York, Blaine came to Massachusetts as a young man. For more than 40 years, he was head of the Taunton branch of the Cobb, Bates and Yerxa Company.

When that firm was absorbed by the S. S. Pierce Company, Mr. Blaine was brought to Boston as an executive of the latter corporation.

He was a member of the University Club here and the Winthrop Club of Taunton. Two daughters survive him.

MISS MINNIE A. FLOYD

Reverend Howard P. Bozarth pastor of North Church, Haverhill, was to officiate today at funeral services for Miss Minnie A. Floyd sister of former Governor Charles F. Floyd of New Hampshire.

She died at her home in High land avenue, Haverhill, after more than 30 years residence in that city. She was a native of Enfield, N. H. Burial will be in the family cemetery there.

MISS MARY McDONOUGH

Solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at Immaculate Conception Church, Malden, Monday, for Miss Mary T. McDonough of Sheridan avenue, Medford. She was the sister of Edward M. McDonough, director of Boston Trade school.

The church service will be preceded by rites at the home in Medford. Miss McDonough was the daughter of the late Hugh and Margaret McDonough.

Study Fire Engine Crash in Danvers

Danvers, Feb. 12—Members of the board of selectmen, the board of fire engineers and Town Counsel James H. Sullivan will make a thorough study of the 79-page report of an accident in which a fire apparatus engine was involved last January 28.

The report is the testimony of 21 witnesses questioned in a special investigation of the accident order by selectmen.

Feature of the report is the testimony of Fireman Clarence Arnott that all but one of five pieces of Danvers fire apparatus have faulty brakes.

P. T. CAMPBELL, SCHOOL HEAD, DIES IN SLEEP

Boston Latin School. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1892 with high honors.

After college graduation, Mr. Campbell taught in Medford High school and later in his old alma mater, Boston Latin school. He became headmaster of the latter institution, serving from 1920 to 1929 in that position.

In April, 1929, he was unanimously elected by the Boston School Committee to be assistant superintendent of the Boston schools to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Augustine L. Baffer.

Two years later, when Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah P. Burke died, Mr. Campbell was chosen to head the school system, so brilliant a record had he made.

His wife, Mrs. Edith Campbell, a woman, Thomas, graduate of Harvard in 1928, now a teacher-coach at Roxbury Memorial High School; a daughter, Edna, South College '27, and volunteer teacher in the Boston schools, and three grandchildren, Maxine, Jean and Brenda Campbell, survive.

Mr. Campbell was sought as dean of admissions by Harvard university in 1934 to fill the vacancy left by the death of Henry Dunnybacher, his predecessor as headmaster of Latin school, but he did not wish to leave the Boston superintendency.

WON HIGH HONORS

He held a number of honorary degrees, including that of Doctor of Education from Colby College. He had devoted to education in a number of institutions, including the schools of Boston, Oxford and Boston University.

A close friend of President-Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, the superintendent was a progressive, but still an educator of the old order.

When President James Bryant Conant of Harvard dropped Latin as a requirement for an A. B. degree, Mr. Campbell did not hesitate to disagree with him.

He was a strong advocate of equity in the Constitution of the United States and a stern enemy of "isms." He considered the "Three R's" essential in education and, while of kindly nature personally felt that the Rotarian adage of "Square the red ends until the circle was worthwhile."

Mayor Mourns 2 Friends In Campbell, Keeler

Mayor Mansfield had two dear friends in mourn to death today —Dr. William B. Keeler, health commissioner, and Superintendent of Schools Patrick T. Campbell, both dead in bed last night.

Of Dr. Keeler, who died last night, the mayor said:

"Dr. Keeler's death came as a great shock to me. He was not only my family physician, but a near neighbor and a very dear friend. He served the city faithfully and well for many years and when his worth and services were recognized by appointment to be chief health officer of the city he demonstrated executive qualities which made him one of the very first and best loved heads of department that Boston has had for many years. His death is a distinct loss to the community."

Commenting on the death of Superintendent Campbell, he issued the following statement:

"The death of Superintendent of Schools Patrick T. Campbell was a great shock to me. The city has lost a great educator, and I have lost a close personal friend and neighbor of mine in East Boston for many years. My sincere sympathy goes to his family in this hour of bereavement."

SUPT. CAMPBELL

The death of Superintendent of Schools Patrick T. Campbell takes away a man who was keenly interested in the study of the child in its days of school life. You see him as he attended an institute of the Child Study Association of America at the Westminster Hotel. Mrs. Thomas Small, left, Chestnut Hill, as president of the association, and Mrs. Philip Fox, center, a leader in that work, shown chatting with Mr. Campbell during last year's session.

SUPERINTENDENT CAMPBELL JAMES W. REARDON

Superintendent Campbell and his friend James W. Reardon, associate editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, photographed during one of the times Mr. Reardon was obtaining an interview as to plans for the Boston schools.

In October, 1935, Mr. Campbell was very busy attending many sections of his school district to administer the oath of allegiance, as was required by the then new law. At right is the superintendent of schools, with his right hand raised as he administered the oath to 250 men and women teachers of East Boston schools. This took place in the auditorium of the Boston High School.

RITES MONDAY FOR DR. KEELER

State and city officials will join Monday in final tribute to Dr. William B. Keeler, Boston health commissioner and Mayor Mansfield's personal physician.

He died suddenly at his home in Wyoming street, Roxbury, after suffering an attack of pneumonia from what at first appeared to be a minor illness.

Funeral services at the home Monday will be followed by solemn high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury.

Dr. Keeler was a veteran public health official, having headed the George Robert White health unit in South Boston, since 1922 and having served for many years as medical supervisor of Boston's parochial schools.

He became city health commissioner in January, 1930, succeeding the late Dr. Francis X. Mahoney.

Dr. Keeler was born in Schenectady, N. Y., 59 years ago. He was brought to Roxbury as a babe by his parents.

He attended the public schools of Boston and obtained his medical degree from Tufts college.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary E. Hartin, of Charlestown, a daughter, Virginia Rita, seen by a brother, Stanley A. Keeler.

Leaders Pay Tribute
To Supt. Campbell

Shocked at the sudden death of Superintendent of Schools Patrick T. Campbell, prominent educators, state and city officials today paid tribute to him.

Those who publicly expressed their sorrow included:

GOVERNOR HURLEY—I am deeply grieved to hear of the death of Mr. Campbell. He was a kindly gentleman, a great educator and a loyal friend. His loss will be keenly felt in the field of education.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR KELLY—Not only is the death of Superintendent Campbell a great loss to the city of Boston and the educational world but it is a shock and sorrow to the thousands of young men he taught and to countless others who always found him a kindly counsellor and true friend. The city and state have lost a real champion of the common people. He was always enthusiastic about assisting unfortunate boys who needed help.

FREDERICK R. SULLIVAN, chairman of the school committee—The city of Boston suffers a tremendous loss in the death of this beloved superintendent of schools. He was more than an educator; as all who had the honor of studying under him at Boston Latin School and all serving under him can attest. He leaves behind him a monument of an educational system raised to the highest standards by his administration. My heartfelt sympathy is extended to Mrs. Campbell and to her son and daughter.

DEAN HENRY W. HOLMES, Harvard Graduate School of Education—The Campbell death is a staggering loss to Boston, to Harvard University, to education in the United States. He was a real and a refuge to those who hold to high standards of scholarship. Especially to school administration and the exclusion of political influence from educational affairs.

FORMER MAYOR JOHN F. FITZGERALD—His death makes me very sad. He was a Latin School graduate. That's my school. In a school made up of students of many nationalities, he was universally loved and respected. He was in his happiest mood last year while serving as toastmaster at the Latin School reunion dinner. The love and affection in which he was held by graduates of the school was well portrayed then. As head of the Boston schools he was kindly, friendly and cooperative. This was reflected in the great admiration his teachers had for him.

MICHAEL E. FITZGERALD, superintendent of schools of Cambridge—"We've lost a great educator. Boston education has had a remarkable figure, a man who has given the greater part of his life to teaching youth.

EDWARD H. CLARKE, superintendent of schools of Winthrop—I have known Mr. Campbell well for 25 years. At one time he was a near neighbor in Winthrop. I loved him as a friend and admired him as an administrator and executive.

MAURICE J. TOBIN, member of the school committee—I am deeply shocked and grieved by the sudden death of our superintendent of schools, Patrick T. Campbell. Our city has lost an outstanding educator and gentleman; the pupils in our school system have lost a wise and great guide and counsellor; our teachers have lost an understanding and inspiring leader, and I have lost a friendship, the memory of which I shall cherish all the days of my life. Patrick T. Campbell rose to the top of his profession on merit and ability. He was truly a great man.

DR. JOSEPH V. LYONS, member of the school committee—I cannot adequately express my deep sorrow on hearing of the death of Patrick T. Campbell. The city has lost one of its foremost citizens and I have lost a dear friend. My deepest sympathy to Mrs. Campbell and the other members of the bereaved family.

PATRICK J. SULLIVAN, deputy state commissioner of education—The state department of education joins with the city of Boston in mourning the loss of Superintendent Campbell. An able and efficient educator and administrator, under his direction the Boston school system maintained its high place in the educational world. Loved by all who came in contact with him, he leaves behind him a legion of grieving friends in whose memories he will continue to live.

Campbell's Memorial Planned

Immediately upon learning of the death of Superintendent of Schools Campbell today, members of the Boston Latin School Class of '91 started plans today for a dinner on April 3, to raise funds for a permanent memorial to their late headmaster.

Arnold Weiner, president of the class, appointed a committee to arrange the affair which includes Howard I. Richard, James Carey, James Cary, Elliot D. Cauley and John F. Roach.

President Weiner said that it was tentatively planned to have the memorial in a form of a bronze plaque to be placed in the auditorium of Latin School. Mr. Campbell was headmaster of the school for four of the six years the Class of '91 was studying.

GIRL IS FREED IN HOLDUP

the fact to the sensational robbery.

Today she pleaded "nolo" and Judge James C. Donnelly placed the case on file, after District Attorney Owen Hoban had explained that his office had insufficient evidence against her.

Mrs. Lewes was the sixth person indicted in connection with the robbery of Mrs. Kennedy in her Southboro home.

Sharing the 15 to 20-year sentence with Bellina is Samuel Linden, also convicted of being one of the actual bandits who invaded the Kennedy home.

Today, a few hours prior to Mrs. Lewis' arraignment, Harry Mendelsohn, 48, of Roxbury, was fined $200, was given a suspended sentence of two years and was placed on probation for four years.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Mendelsohn was indicted as an accessory after the fact to the robbery.

His fine and suspended sentence were imposed by Judge Donnelly when he reduced by $100 a $300 fine recommended by District Attorney Hoban.

The district attorney, pleading for leniency for the Roxbury man, who had admitted guilt to his own charges and had testified for the state against Bellina and Linden, said Mendelsohn was in poor health and a term in jail might cause his death.

In her exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American on January 23 Mrs. Lewes, whose indictment was a surprise, denied all acquaintance with the principals involved in the robbery when wholly unlike herself in background.

PREDICTED FREEDOM

"I know absolutely nothing about the jewelry robbery and wasn't connected with it in any way," she asserted.

"I don't know who committed the robbery and I don't care who committed it. All I want is to be left alone.

"As a result of the police action and the publicity, I lost my job as a saleslgrl in a Boston store and have been unable to get another.

"When the time comes—when my day in court arrives—I am confident that I will be exonerated and freed."

Wendel Kidnaper Pleads Guilty

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Murray Bliefeld, one of three men on trial in Kings County Court, Brooklyn, on charges of kidnaping Paul H. Wendel, former New Jersey attorney, today in a surprise move entered a plea of guilty to kidnaping.

Counsel for Bliefeld told the court he desired to make a motion for Bliefeld and asked for removal of the jury.

Judge J. F. Fitzgerald refused to accede to the request and Burton Turkus of defense counsel joined in the plea for removal, explaining that what was to be said was prejudicial to Martin Schlosman and Harry Weiss, the other defendants, whom he represents.

The judge again denied the motion and Bliefeld withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. The defense then rested.

Hair-Raising Stunt in Filmland

Hollywood, Feb. 12 (AP)—Three ex-Nazi film actors were reported busy in what they dubbed the Bavarian hardships.

Edward Arnold, Jack Oakie and Cary Grant have started a four weeks' race to see whose hair grows the longest. Now sporting in a historical film they had their locks barbered yesterday to an even length in late 19th century style.

Not until the picture is finished next month can they get another haircut.

So they wagered $25 each on the result and agreed to give their winnings, if any, to charity.

Hit-Runner Kills Officer's Brother

Providence, R. I., Feb. 12—All available members of the police department were ordered today in an intensive search for a hit and run motorist who fatally injured Frederick R. Sullivan, 50, brother of Providence Police Chief Dennis F. Sullivan.

The accident occurred on Westminster street, near Army street.

The victim lived in that street, near High Service Fuhrman Sullivan was off duty at the time.

Informed of what had happened, the officer took an immediate hand in organizing pursuit of the death car driver.

MAYOR ASKS ARMY FOR FLAG RULING

Mayor Mansfield today appealed to United States army authorities at the headquarters of the First Corps Area in South Boston to settle a dispute between fighting heads of municipal departments who claims to be authorities on the manner in which the national flag should be flown on holidays.

The mayor sought to have all flags on municipal buildings placed at half-mast out of respect to the memory of Dr. William B. Keeler, municipal health commissioner, who died last night, and Superintendents of Schools Patrick T. Campbell, who died today.

Officials of the park department and City Messenger Edward J. Leary contended that flags should be flown at full mast today because of the observance of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Roswell G. Hall, superintendent of public buildings, contended the banners should be at half-mast.

As a result of the dispute, flags on City Hall, which are in the custody of Leary, are at full staff, and those assigned to Hall are at half staff. Park department flags are at full staff and those on 16 municipal buildings are at half staff.

Army authorities ruled that this is neither a state nor a national holiday and that department heads can use their own judgment.

As a result of this decision, Superintendent Hall's flags are still at half mast and those in the custody of Messenger Leary and officials of the park department are still at full mast.

Kelso, Wash., Feb. 12 (AP) — The population of Scantygrease has gone dignified. Citizens are tired of being "Scantygreasers" and, furthermore, believe the name of their community no longer is accurately descriptive.

So they have petitioned county commissioners to rechrist the town "Delancey."

The region won its name half a century ago because fat was so scarce housewives used turnips to grease frying pans.

Eddie Duchin's Wife, 'Ousted' From Blue Book, Unperturbed

'I've Got Company,' Band Leader's Mate Declares

By BETTY DE PESA

Once the social register, and now, out since her marriage to Eddie Duchin, the former Marjorie Oelrichs thinks the blue book does well as a "private telephone directory."

Eddie Duchin, popular dance orchestra leader appearing at the Metropolitan Theater, submits to a few forced grimaces by his socialite wife, the former Marjorie Oelrichs, whose marriage to the ex-social world horrified her family. "But," says Marjorie, "the Boston register is only a swell telephone book. And besides, look at the fine company I keep." The rest of the set-up is quite impressive.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

GEORGE HOLLAND

MAYBE THE ROUNDS: Mayor Mansfield was host to a party in Chinatown last night . . . Eddie Shore may be the next manager of the Chicago Blackhawks . . . Whether the injured star will play hockey again continues to be a question . . . The three Boston cops, Sergeant Frank Sliney, and Detectives Francis Sweeney and Dan Curran who figured in the "catch" of "Little Danny" Gerardi and $5000 worth of heroin last night feasted only on coffee and sandwiches at mealtimes while they waited 24 hours for their prey in a Carver street boarding house . . . Sergeant Sliney played on the undefeated Somerville High football team of 1916 . . . While two remained on watch, the other member of the local narcotic squad travelled to a lunch-room for edibles . . . New salvaging operations of a vessel sunk in Massachusetts waters are reported as being partly financed by a Boston woman who supplied funds for a preceding set of salvagers . . . She evaded the indictment of one of the earlier operators . . . Attorney General Paul A. Dever is ailing at home with lumbago . . . Captain William Donovan, former skipper of Station 7, will get the command of the revived Station 3, it is stated positively in high police places . . . Although there was an unofficial announcement to this effect, the appointment's believed to be assured . . . When a lawyer asked Mr. Justice Henry T. Lummus in a courthouse building elevator whether the justice approved of the President's request for new or more judges, to the Supreme Court, he parried as follows: "I don't know . . . I'm loafing, with only 20 cases in arrears" . . . "Pudge" Neidinger, former Dartmouth athletic great, and now a dean at Hanover, is reported to have an eye on the vacated hockey team coachship.

The Postman Will Be Ringing:

Perhaps the most unpopular move in the whole Brookline police mess is the transfer, just announced, of Patrolman Frank "Feather" McManus from his post as traffic guardian in the vicinity of the Devotion School . . . The officer has seven children of his own, and was the pet of all his official charges and their parents . . . It was not an uncommon sight to see the husky policeman walk across the street with two kids hanging on each of his arms . . . There's a slew of letters being written in protest.

Once Over Lightly:

"When My Dream Boat Comes Home" has eased into the No. 1 song rating here and in other populous vicinities . . . Automobile salesmen are urging clients to buy now . . . The cost of the strike must be passed along, according to their canvasses . . . Strictly not an epicure, your correspondent nevertheless takes pains to report the complete enjoyment of a dinner consisting mainly of an old-fashioned planked steak . . . The planking was so sumptuous that it probably would have been reminiscent to a professional eater of the Diamond Jim Brady dining days . . . Hotel Minerva's new dining-room, where Jack Donovan's orchestra and a smart floor-show beguile the patrons, was the restaurant, and "planked" chickens are a featured item also

Chatter:

For a good feature story, there seems little lacking in the fact that Kay Brown, a very pretty attorney, is the girl-leader of a male band in Blinstrub's dine and dance emporium in South Boston . . .

Lucky Number 9 In Supreme Court

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

It looks like there will be no fifteen-player rule for the Supreme Court.

Nine men were good enough for Lincoln. And they were good enough for Washington. And, as the old gag goes, if they were good enough for Washington they were good enough for Baltimore.

Tonight's homework for children: Tonight is to find a forty-year old judge with sixty years experience who can be multiplied by six, added to nine, divided by nothing and come out even.

AUSTEN LAKE

Jump Events Feature Of Unicorn's Winter Track Games

THERE IS AN IRONICAL TWIST IN the likelihood that the B. A. A. will score the most notable triumph in the history of its indoor games tomorrow night when it presents the pick of the U. S. A.'s amateur track athletes at the Garden, including several Olympic champions, a Japanese pole vault specialist and such circus oddities as the Rideout twins and the Negro altitude leapers.

AUSTEN LAKE

This peak of promotional success comes after poverty has dispersed the B. A. A.'s once robust fellowship and left only a faithful few to maintain its punctilio, royal forms in a hired hotel suite, a scant bottle toss across the way from its old mansion of red brick on Exeter street. Creditors seized the old homestead two years ago and [illegible] blue, Unicorn light. Since then the B. A. A. has existed more in fancy than form, like whiffs of [illegible] rosemary relics in grandma's attic trunk.

Twice each year this shattered remnant of Boston's sport aristocracy nods to tradition by pinning gilt badges on the breasts and setting forth to summon the ghosts of old glory. Once each April when they hold the Marathon shuffle from Hopkinton. And once each February when they stage the renewal of the indoor track games. The profits of the latter pay for the losses of the former and the surplus at the end of the year amounts to little more than the price of a milk punch and maybe a couple of magnums of champagne, so that the old jossers sit in the gloaming chanting old refrains and rapping out the rhythms with pewter mugs salvaged from the club's kitchen.

MR. O! THE BRIGHT STAR

TRACK PHILBERTS WILL BE HANGING from the Garden's girders as they used to hang from the Arena's rafters when Jaie Roy was packing them in and Loren Murchison was the dash king at the top of the B. A. A.'s pre-crash prosperity. The mile was the bright feature then.

[illegible] like a punch in the stomach, O!

Mr. O. who vaulted an inch below the indoor record (14.4) at the Millrose games last week with a borrowed pole and in his first take-off experience from indoor boards, is regarded as a physical freak among the pole athletes. He is uncommonly narrow across the shoulders and slight in the arms, thus confounding American theory that a vaulter must own a wrestler's development in the biceps and pectoral muscles (chest and shoulders, pliz). He has what George Varoff, the world record holder, calls "rhythm," or that form of muscular music which enables slight men to perform marvels of power.

STEP-LADDER LEGS

THERE HAVE BEEN LESS THAN TEN POLE vaulters who could top 14 feet in field history, and here are three tomorrow night, including Mr. O., Earle Meadows (Olympic champion), George Varoff (world record holder) and a fourth, Bill Harding of Yale, who has been flirting with the height and may soon be Yale's fifth 14-footer in vaulting history.

LASH VS. RIDEOUT TWINS

BLAINE AND WAYNE RIDEOUT ARE THE matched pair who ran Don Lash into the ground at the Sugar Bowl games last New Year's, taking twin turns at harrying the Indiana dormitory dish-washer, into bleared vision with their repeated rushes until Don grew giddy and Wayne won with the second fastest time for two miles ever made by an American, 9:03.4.

[illegible] twins ran seven dead heats in cross-country races at Indiana State [illegible] to the University of Alabama and thence to Texas [illegible]

[illegible] Jim Hogbert, with three pair of twins [illegible] in the Columbia [illegible] Penn State and Manhattan [illegible] working daytimes as a Wall Street porter and studying nights as a freshman at N. Y. U. As an extra added feat, he supports his mother.

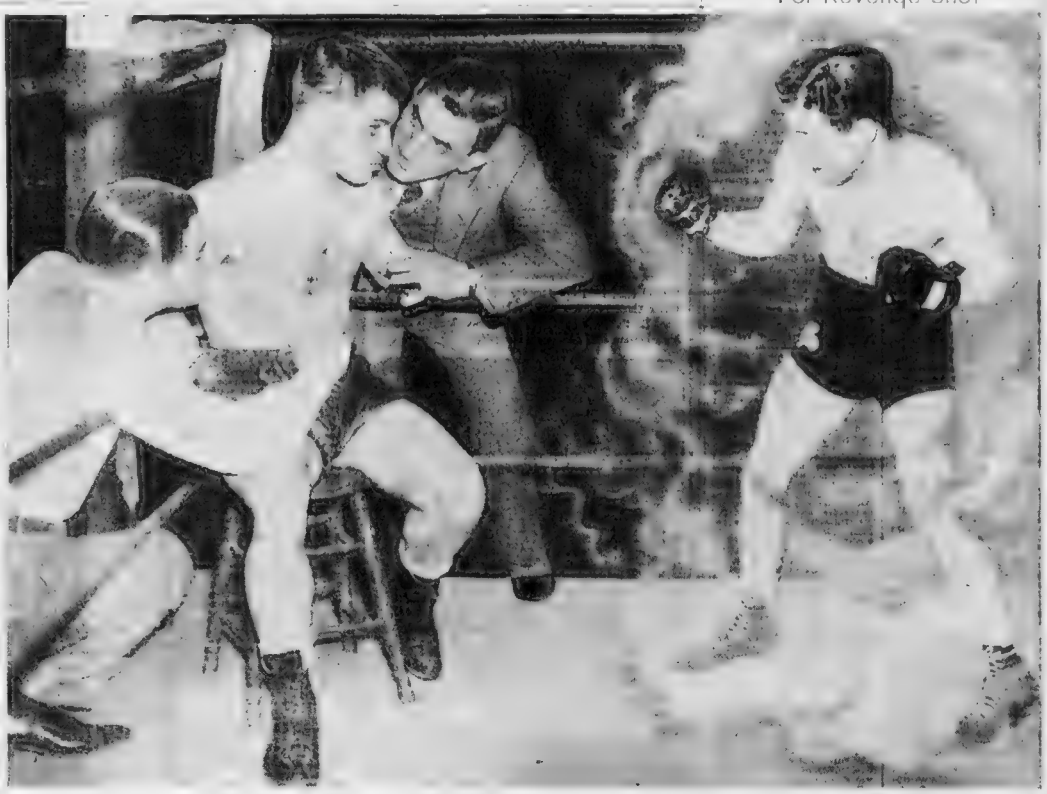
Fuller Awaits Going For Revenge Shot



ROCKY PALLADINO SAMMY FULLER HARRY KELLEY ANDY CALLAHAN

READY FOR THE BELL that will send him into action against Andy Callahan, his bitter rival whom he can see before him, Sammy Fuller looks all set for action as he sits in his corner surrounded by his handlers. With him is Harry Kelley, right, telling him to go out and get Callahan while on the left is Rocky Palladino, who will also work with Fuller. Fuller and Callahan meet tonight in a Christmas Basket Fund match at Mechanics Building.

Quinn Scores Hotel Rates for Team

By BILL GRIMES

"If I was as well versed on the machinations of the present day hotel operators as I am and had turned to stock manipulating to eke out a livelihood, instead of baseball," declared President Bob Quinn of the Bees heatedly, "I'd beg, borrow, and, yes, I believe, I'd even steal, to get possession of enough money to corner the auto-trailer market.

"Just as soon as we rounded that corner where [illegible] we'd been telling us the [illegible] perts was waiting, the hotel operators jacked up their rates" continued the prexy. "You can't overlook the fact that [illegible] clubs traveled around and patronized hotels, during the depression while the general public remained at home, if they had any.

A knockout finish is predicted for tonight when Sammy Fuller of Chelsea and the North End climbs into the ring at Mechanics Building to battle Andy Callahan in a ten-round bout part of whose proceeds go to the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund.

Expert Dope On Florida — Free Advice From Inside

By JACK CONWAY

I am going to write to the Miami, Fla., Chamber of Commerce and ask that I be named as one of its executive secretaries. They can pay me off with mutuel tickets at Hialeah Park and Tropical Park.

MR. BOSTON

I could make this request on behalf of the numerous persons who visit me to inquire about Florida. I realize I could be very much like da minnie but I would like to look under a palm tree or take a dip in the warm tropical waters. Even those are folks like George Underwood who are always on to check up on some of the dolls I wrote about while I was in exile in Miami.

"If things are as you claim, Miami must be a paradise for a producer seeking a chorus for a Broadway show," said Underwood

Unsteady though the footing, the Stormy Weather, winner of the Miami-to-Nassau race, found the crew of this gallant yacht enjoying the actions of the billowy waves. The Stormy Weather proved a seaworthy craft for the 185-mile trip was one of the roughest experienced in years. Spencer Berger of New Haven, Conn., owner and skipper of the yacht, proved himself an able mariner in shooting his craft home.

OFFERED SAME SALARY

"Buck Jordan can either accept the salary I offered him or stay at home. A man that's been a top salary man on this club for three years, and in that time has only shown to the club's advantage in one, is mighty unappreciative.'

... Boston Braves President Bob Quinn ... Buck Jordan ... was unsigned.

"Can you imagine this fellow asking for a 40 per cent increase just because his hitting tops the roster? Why, up until last year Jordan was a fair hitter, but there he stopped.

Refused in Trade

"I tried to trade him this winter to every club in the league, and they all refused to do business. As far as the Boss are concerned, he can stay to home, for I don't know of a place in this league that will give him a uniform.

"I offered him the same salary he received last year, which is by should have been cut a third. As far as the club is concerned we are through dickering with such players."

DIE HARD A CINCH, SAYS WILSON

FRED HOEY Writes:

Hello everybody! This is Fred Hoey speaking.

"That umpire is as blind as a bat," is an oft-heard expression at a ball game. Yet we have an illuminating case of an umpire on balls and strikes deliberately closing his eyes and guessing. Furthermore this umpire has openly confessed to this weakness

FRED HOEY

It a... [illegible] 1912 when Bill McGowan, ch... Am... in Leag... ump... [illegible] ... At [illegible] tender age Bill was s... [illegible] ... He sure s... [illegible] ... when he decided to take up um... [illegible] ...

McGowan was [illegible] ... brother, Jack, a college game [illegible] ... at Newark, De... [illegible] ... Brother Jack was unable to fill [illegible] ... and suggested that Bill [illegible] ... Yes, McGowan confessed he didn't know the rules, but finally was persuaded to give it a whirl.

"It was quite an experience for me," recalls Bill. "In the first few innings I closed my eyes every time the pitcher threw the ball. I just guessed at balls and strikes and got away with it. In the fourth inning I contrived to keep my eyes open. I had no trouble for the balance of the game."

From that point in his career, Bill McGowan has advanced steadily until today he's regarded as the players' umpire in the American League. In other words, the players voted Bill the most popular umpire in the American League.

It's a real delight to the boys in the press box when Bill handles a game in Boston. They know he keeps the game moving with a minimum of drag. That swaggering walk of Bill's is one of his most colorful characteristics. He is called "Big Bill" by the players, not in a derisive sense. He picked up this nickname when he played the infield for a powder company team in Delaware.

Bill's recipe for good umpiring is right to the point. "I would say that the necessary requisites are good judgment, courage, good eyesight and a thorough knowledge of the rules," snaps McGowan.

We like the fat measure of praise Bill hands out for the success he has attained. "Whatever I have accomplished I owe to Billy Evans, present farm director for the Red Sox, and Tommy Connolly, present chief of American League umpires. Ban Johnson teamed me up with Billy and Tommy. Their coaching put me over."

Bill may have closed his eyes during his first umpiring effort, but he has since opened the eyes of the baseball public to the fact that he is the outstanding umpire in the American League.

Optimism is nothing new in Cincinnati. For years and years the Reds have won more pennants in February than any team in the National League. The late Jack Ryder, Tom Swope and Frank Grayson turned out excellent flag waving ceremonies on their portables in mid winter. But something unexpected generally happened between April and October. Except for one year, 1919, when that grand guy from Pittsburg, the late Pat Moran, led the Reds to a pennant and baseball's world's title, Cincinnati has been just one more No. 8 team in the league.

Now the Cincinnati Reds are getting some moral support from the Chicago sector, in the form of baseball betting books which rate the odds against the major league teams winning their pennants.

The odds against the Reds are listed as 10 to 1, And against the Boston Bees 100 to 1. Which gives us an excellent reason for popping off.

We have before us the National League Green Book prepared by Bill Brandt, the league publicity director. This book is loaded with intriguing bits of information. As we pass on to the 1936 season's record, we note that of the 22 games played between the Bees and Reds, Boston won 13 and Cincinnati won 9.

After sifting through the playing rosters of both clubs for the coming season, we fail to discover where the Reds are going to generate any more power and ability than the Bees

Yet that 10 to 1 against the Reds pennant chances and 100 to 1 against the Bees just doesn't make sense to us

We believe, however, that Bob Quinn and Bill McKechnie are quite agreeable to having these unreasonable odds broadcast to the baseball world. Then when the Bees start to become serious first division contenders, and the Reds go their usual way, in the general direction of China, it will make the Bees' situation all the happier.

These Chicago betting commissioners are doing all right by the Red Sox when they bracket them with Cleveland in third place with odds of 6 to 1 against each to win the pennant. You recall the Red Sox finished sixth last season. The Yanks are placed at the top with 6 to 5 odds quoted. And Detroit in second place is rated as a 3 to 1 shot. It won't make New England fans sore if these bookies have called the proper shot on the Red Sox.

7-RACE CARD AT HIALEAH

By DAVE WILSON

(Selections made for heavy track)

BEST BET—DIE HARD, 1ST

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 12 — Miss A. Doris' Die Hard, as he is placed in the six furlongs of the opening stanza, shapes up as the safest hazard on a glittering card of seven races here tomorrow.

Die Hard has been idle since Tropical Park and will be coming up a fresh horse. Six furlongs in 1:13 and other creditable trials attest to fitness.

FIRST—Die Hard, Move Faster
Nalita J.

DIE HARD will probably have MOVE FASTER to down for major honors. The latter like the top selection has been away from the races since Tropical Park. He has an easy six furlongs in 1:16 to recommend fitness. NALITA J. nitted a trifle too ambitious.y in last race may improve enough to any minor honors.

SECOND—Vested Power, Last Romance, Paradox Girl

VESTED POWER lost his long re stop in last race. The W H Gallagher color bearer was in the thick of contention when the accident happened. In front of that he was a galloping winner over similar opposition. LAST ROMANCE and PARADOX GIRL are the main danger. They rate as rained

THIRD—Sir Quest, Grand Duke, Stubin

SIR QUEST, a bang-up second to Vote Boy in last race, should improve enough to account for major honors in an affair of this sort GRAND DUKE, if he can run over figures close up under the weight arrangements STUBIN last race was an much too poor to be true

FOURTH—Wise Mentor, Yes Siree, Benjam

WISE MENTOR in my book is the best juvenile colt uncovered to date. The Winfrey color bearer whirled three paces in :33 3-5, lead Gert B. and other highly regarded youngsters under the wire in his last outing. He worked three paces hard hard from the wire through the mud this morning YES SIREE, winner of three races, shapes up slightly better than BENJAM in the fight for place honors

FIFTH—Bernard F., Log. Maedic

BERNARD F. ran a sensational race to finish fourth to No Sir Ely Ted and Screenshifter in last Saturday's running of the Bahama Handicap. He was as good as left at the start but closed a tremendous gap to be beaten a trifle less than two lengths for the important money. LOG, which turned in a disgraceful performance in the above mentioned race is in nicely under 114 pounds. This way weighted the Bull Dog filly should prove a tough nut to crack. MAEDIC, winner of all six starts at Saratoga last summer has a nice work in 1:41 to recommend fitness

SIXTH—The Singer, Saintlite, Good Visibility

THE SINGER picked up 120 pounds and just missed grubbing Good Visibility in a swiftly run mile and an eighth at Tropical last Saturday. The Atwell gelding peels off eight pounds in actual weight and under an impost of 112 pounds he should have this race at his mercy. SAINTLITE holds some class but we find it difficult to follow with the top selection over the prevailing route. GOOD VISIBILITY will have a 5-pound shift in the weights against him

SEVENTH—Motley, Watch Him, Payark

MOTLEY, second to Hermie Roy in last race, needs only to duplicate this good endeavor to insure brackets. WATCH HIM, fourth in the above mentioned race, is strictly the horse to fear.

100 OUT FOR 'H' CREW

Over 100 candidates reported to Coach Tom Bolles at the varsity crew and learn, first hand, what the former Washington University freshman mentor expects of them this season.

The candidates will work out informally at the Newell boathouse today and tomorrow and will be ready to start training in earnest on Monday. Starting Monday the aspirants for the eight seats in the Harvard varsity shell will work out in the tank until they take to the Charles river in regulation shells on March 20.

Ten boats in all will be tried out for the first part of the campaign. After the Easter recess Bolles will cut the candidates to four crews, a varsity, junior varsity, 150-pound crew and a combination used.

The first meet will be held on April 24th against crews from Princeton and M. I. T. in the Compton Cup races.

Other meets are scheduled with Columbia and M. I. T. on the Charles May 8th, Cornell Syracuse and M. I. T. on May 15th; Penn and Navy on May 29th and the final race of the season June 25th against Yale, at New London.

POWER Leaders Look AHEAD

CO-OPERATION EXCELLENT

By B. C. FORBES

The most wonderful example of industrial co-operation in America—in the world—has been furnished by our public utility companies.

Absolutely voluntarily—sometimes in face of political criticism—managements of different utility plants proceeded to hook up connections to one another, ready to be immediately thrown into use in case of drouth, break-downs, floods or other emergencies in one or more localities.

Today the greater part of the continent is not solely dependent upon the local generating stations. But can be supplied with power from neighboring states.

• • •

The farsightedness of this arrangement has been repeatedly demonstrated in a most practical way.

And now the widespread famine done by the floods has driven home afresh the statesmanlike vision of America's utility leaders. Communities whose local power plants were inundated, knocked out of service, have been furnished light and power from other communities, from other utility companies.

Take as just one example, what has occurred in Cincinnati and Dayton. Twenty-four years ago, when Dayton was engulfed by a ghastly flood, the citizens of Cincinnati contributed $125,000 for Red Cross relief in the Miami (Ohio) valley.

• • •

Today Dayton is not only contributing money, food, clothing, etc., to Cincinnati flood sufferers. But Dayton factories and householders let it be known that they would gladly waive their demands for electricity in order that Cincinnati might be donated more current.

Dayton started sending half the 40,000 horse power that could be carried over the transmission lines between the two cities. Dayton did more. Later, when the extra equipment which increased by 25 per cent the aid it could extend.

Instead of indiscriminately grasping the wisdom of providing interconnection between utility generating stations, instead of interlacing states, to cope with just such emergencies as precipitated by the floods, these have patiently waited which induced certain companies to sever all lines crossing state borders.

Which have exhibited the greatest foresight, the greater wisdom, our utility executives or our politicians?

• • •

Here is an example of the good sportsmanship of utility management. Six months ago Mayor Frank Hague, political overlord of Northern States Power switched over to that corporation's Hudson plant, breaking a recording contract under which the city had been receiving current from the Public Service Co. of New Jersey. The latter company had been making a reduction in the rate each year, and August. The strike caused a reduction in the amount of current which was shipped from that country, causing the demand to "back up" and the city's supply

Here's Why—

One of America's Leading Automotive Executives States, "Used Car Purchasers Will Get More for Their Money in the Present Market Than Any Other Season of the Year."

He Further Declares, "It Has Been Estimated That It Costs a Dealer Over One Dollar Each Day That He Carries a Good Used Car in Stock.

Were He to Carry Such a Car From This Time Until April 24th, the Net Loss to Him Would Amount to $90.

So the Smart Dealer, Rather Than Shoulder the Extra Burden of $90, Cuts the Price on the Used Car by That Much, or More, to Release His Money for the Conduct of His Business. This Is Good, Practical Business Sense.

The Dealer With Many Used Cars in Stock in the Middle of Winter Is Like the Haberdasher With Straw Hats to Sell in August.

The Storekeeper Cuts the Prices on His Straw Hats to Move Them, and the Smart Automobile Dealer Cuts His Prices to Move Used Cars.

All This is to the Advantage of the Used Car Buyer. By Making His Purchase in Mid-Winter, He Gets a Good Used Car at a Bargain Figure. He Can Get a Much Better Used Car NOW Than He Can Get for the Same Money in the Spring."

Mr. Roosevelt's Debt To the Supreme Court

MR. ROOSEVELT'S demands on industry to provide more jobs and thereby reduce unemployment shows an amazing lack of understanding of the problems of employers.

Employers cannot employ beyond their ability to PAY.

High wages must FOLLOW reviving business. They cannot precede it or they prevent business from reviving.

Mr. Roosevelt assumes most astonishingly that increased employment depends entirely on the wish of the employer; that all an employer has to do is to WANT to employ more people, and WANT to pay higher wages, and he can do it.

This is a distinct error, and sometimes makes one almost doubt the soundness of the President's economics.

THE obvious and simple facts are that the employer has a certain income out of which to pay wages.

If he employs more men than his income justifies, he goes broke and his concern closes up, and his whole lot of employes are thrown out of work, and nothing good is accomplished either for employer or employes.

Furthermore, if an employer pays higher wages than his income will provide, he must cut down the number of employes; and if he does that he cuts down his production, and consequently his income, and consequently further reduces his ability to employ.

Any practical American ought to know that you have to plant the seed before you can reap the grain; and, as Macaulay said, if you live on the seed you will not have any grain to reap.

THE only way to increase employment is to stimulate business.

Increasing business means increasing demand for work and workers.

Increasing demand for workers means higher wages.

As business grows, employment grows and wages rise.

This is not only the way in which employment and wages increase, but it is the ONLY way in which they can be made to increase.

Mr. Roosevelt's NRA, compelling shorter hours and higher wages before business as a rule was able to meet those conditions, would have ruined all the weaker industries in the country, and would have left all business monopolized by the stronger concerns.

It would have made less employment instead of more employment.

And it would have killed Mr. Roosevelt's popularity by proving the disastrous impracticability of his program.

THE Supreme Court prevented all this, pronouncing the NRA unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court saved Mr. Roosevelt's prestige and popularity when it saved the country's reviving prosperity.

The country should be grateful to the Supreme Court, and particularly should Mr. Roosevelt be grateful.

He owes his re-election to it.

Watch Towers of Liberty

The birthday of Abraham Lincoln is honored today not only in America but throughout the civilized world.

Lincoln is one of the world's immortals because he made the CONCEPT OF AMERICANISM which was his guide the standard for the attainment of human freedom.

The LINCOLN TRADITION of control of government by the governed is imperishable.

The Watch Towers of American Liberty, in Mr. Lincoln's own conception, are the Constitution which makes freedom AN UNASSAILABLE RIGHT and the Supreme Court which PROTECTS freedom against all assault.

The LINCOLN TRADITION is truly pictured as the THIRD Watch Tower of Liberty, because his patriotic example charges all future Americans to guard liberty with courage and intelligence.

Lincoln, the Man

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

We have come up again in the march of time to the birth anniversary of the most revered of all Americans, except, perhaps, George Washington. One hundred and twenty-eight years have passed almost the entire span of the history of the United States, since Abraham Lincoln was born in a log and clapboard shack — it was nothing better — in Hardin County, Kentucky.

It has taken all these years to give us the true stature of the man who was a Presence, rather than a personality. During the Civil War, and for years thereafter, he was both idolized and execrated.

It was difficult to believe that writers and cartoonists for at least twenty years, up to the time of his death and after, pictured him as an uncouth country bumpkin, a slick politician given to vulgar stories. Thus came the time when he became so glorified and deified that once more the true human being was obscured.

But time has corrected the statue and the portrait, and after all these years we know Lincoln, the man . . . the strong, patient, humorous, melancholy, sweet-souled, indomitable great gentleman that he was, for all his lowly birth. We know him for what he was.

We know him thoroughly in all his moods and deeds, even in his oddities and inconsistencies, through the years of his long struggle against poverty, through the years of his power and glory; his blighted romance, his unhappy marriage, his struggles with ambitious and insolent leaders of his own party and his own cabinet; his divine patience with his blundering generals; his sadness over the slaughter of the Civil War; his sympathy with the South, but his inflexible determination to preserve the Union.

ALL DEEDS KNOWN

We can now go back to the real Lincoln—Lincoln, the human being, not the myth, not the demi-god. And half gods are insignificant creatures compared to whole men.

We can go back to the days when he lay flat on the floor of a log cabin, studying by the firelight—the only light he had; to the young rail splitter and country store keeper; to the trader flat-boating down the Mississippi to New Orleans; to the Illinois lawyer riding the circuit and winning his cases with wit and keen observation of human nature, as much as by his use of law and the evidence; to the tall, lanky politician wrapped about with a shawl, his boots mud-spattered, warming his hands in a country hotel, telling side-splitting stories to the hour to the bench and bar.

GREAT AMERICAN

After all these years we know him now for the great human being that he was, the greatest of all Americans, save only the man who founded America; the superb human being, the actual man who dwelt, like the rest of us in common clay, who was mortal as other men are mortal; who had his doubts and fears; who made his mistakes; who changed his ground, who smarted under defeat and knew the chill of humiliation; but a man whose character was so tempered, so indestructible, so pure that his fame will endure as long as the republic stands.

As President he supported, by his faith and patience, the burden of the nation, as Washington, almost alone, upheld on his heroic shoulders the burden of the thirteen colonies.

Faith in the destiny of the country. Faith in the people. Patience with his jealous, quarrelsome, disloyal cabinet officers. Patience with his slow, often insolent generals—not even reproving McClellan when that haughty gentleman refused to get up out of bed to receive his own President.

STERLING QUALITIES

When General Hooker wrote to him that the country needed a dictator, he replied that only those generals who achieve success can set up dictators. He had the power of saying so much in a few words. When Hooker wanted to attack Richmond while General Lee's army was threatening Washington, Lincoln wrote him

"I think Lee's army and not Richmond is your sure objective."

To his own weariness and melancholy he applied the balm of humor. He loved to poke a little fun at his generals. He got word, one day, that a brigadier general and twelve mules had been captured by the Confederates.

"That's bad," said the President. "I can find a brigadier general to five minutes, but those mules cost two hundred dollars apiece."

A great figure, homely, gangling and uncouth, careless of raiment and uncertain of voice, he was the most inspiring orator of his day. He was almost without formal education, yet few men have written nobler English. Pursued by savage malice as he resolutely saved the Union, all attacks left him kind and gentle, serene and aloof from calumny and slander.

From the very roots of the people he sprang, to accomplish a single great task. That done, he vanished, this man who so supremely blended the mystic and the simple . . . the iron will of a dictator with the sweetness of a child, the gentleness of a woman.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

President Roosevelt's program for packing the Supreme Court is meeting stiff opposition in the Senate. The opposition is all the more significant because it is not based upon partisanship. Hiram Johnson of California, Borah of Idaho, Norris of Nebraska, and other influential Senators who are leading the fight against the President's proposal are doing that as a matter of principle.

Senator Van Nuys (D.) of Indiana suggests that the President's bill for reorganization of the Federal courts be separated into two parts. That is a sound idea. The bill combines two proposals—one for procedural reforms and the other for packing the Supreme Court. The part dealing to speed up operation of the judicial machinery is almost universally approved. But the idea of packing the Supreme Court is widely condemned.

The real purpose of the President's program is neither to reform nor to speed up the deliberations of the Supreme Court. He wants to appoint six new judges to that court. He wants this so he will have a Supreme Court which will hold constitutional any legislation he has Congress pass. It is immaterial to him whether the court consists of nine or fifteen judges as long as the majority of them think his way.

Russia is experiencing another "purge." Dictator Stalin is in process of killing off, exiling or imprisoning everybody who is opposed to his rule. More than 2000 men and women have been arrested in the last month merely because they disagree with him politically. The instinct of most dictators is to crush all opposition.

Few rulers are thick-skinned enough to endure criticism. There is not one of the modern crop of dictators who will tolerate much less encourage, his opponents to speak out as Frederic the Great did. "My people and I have come to an agreement that satisfies us both," he once said. "They are to say what they please, and I am to do what I please." When complaint was made to him that a dissatisfied subject was ridiculing him, he asked, "How many thousand men can he bring into the field?"

Business in the United States in 1936 was the best in six years. Big gains were made in virtually every industry. Employment was expanded. It is generally agreed that the worst of the depression has been passed and that the country is well on the road toward prosperity. But the more prosperity we have the greater the demands and expenditures for relief.

Senator Bailey, a good Democrat, of North Carolina, makes the blunt charge that "we are making no progress whatever in the direction of reducing relief expenditures." He says:

"We are spending more today than we spent when the number of ill unemployed, according to the count of the American Federation of Labor was 9 million more than it is at this hour. Today we are spending at the rate of 1$5 million dollars a month notwithstanding we boast that from 7 to 9 millions have returned to work. This situation cannot be explained in any way except that we have caught the disease of public expenditure, and it is sweeping our people and ourselves, our states and our political subdivisions like the black plague."

We may have demonstrated that it is possible to spend ourselves into prosperity. The question now is how much longer we can continue this spending.

Senator Bailey would like to have Congress return relief to the states. But they don't want it. They still delude themselves with the notion that when they get a federal appropriation they are receiving a gift. Even those who understand the federal government has no money except what it raises from the taxpayers of the states like to think they are getting it back from Washington. And they all are moved by the thought that "what we don't get some other state will get as long as the federal grab bag is open there will be no reduction in relief costs.

Wise Words

It is all right to know yourself but it is a downward step to know others.—Dickens.

A hypocrite is the devil's masterpiece.—Talleyrand.

Love is to be allured by sweet words.—Ovid.

Happy he who owes nothing.—Shelley.

Search good in some things called evil and hope for success in right.—Former President Barnard of Columbia University.

No man is so old as not to think he can live one year more.—Cicero.

Let Inquiry Be State-Wide

WHAT about our other State institutions?

With deplorable conditions at Boston State Hospital revealed and, we hope, corrected, that is a logical inquiry.

What about the grave charges contained in the new report of Public Safety Commissioner Paul Kirk?

He mentions Northampton State Hospital, Wrentham State School, Danvers State Hospital, Belchertown State School, Foxboro State Hospital and Medfield State Hospital.

So what about them? How are they managed? How responsible are their officials? How are their patients treated?

The people have every right to know.

If the Boston State Hospital situation has a duplication anywhere in Massachusetts, the people should have all the facts immediately.

Let Governor Hurley's investigation go the whole distance.

LET THE CLEAN-UP BE COMPLETE.

Massachusetts Should Act

SHALL the people rule or be ruled?

That is the question Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, President Roosevelt's former Under - Secretary of the Treasury, asks the Massachusetts Legislature.

He warns:

"The power to give or not to give is held over our sovereign state despite the fact that we shall pay far more than we shall receive."

To save itself and all local government, Mr. Coolidge asks the Legislature to pass a resolution memorializing Congress to allocate Federal funds in lump sums to be administered SOLELY by town and city authorities.

The resolution plan is a good one. It should pass. And Congress — those of Congress who respect the people that elected them—should also pass it.

Local authorities, town and city officials, elected by the people and responsible to the people, are the ones to handle all money.

As long as Presidential appointees are permitted to run governments without any mandate from the people or any responsibility to the people, the very fundamentals of Democracy will be in danger.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Feb. 12—Thought's while strolling: One for Ripley ten years hence—a cluster of a horse and a wagon on Fifth avenue. Nothing so interesting as a letter written with an ancient type-writer ribbon. Study in dispersion. Baron Wrangel, the society reporter.

Look-alikes: James Moffett and Mayor LaGuardia. And Jo Woodyard and Mrs. Harrison Williams. Not many elders have the sweet, Indian-like carriage of Bernard Baruch. Those herringbone suits give me a swimmy feeling, like crossing the Bay of Biscay in rough weather.

Vagrant fancy: Few adventures in life approach the marvels of dreaming. Rudyard Kipling used to ask himself upon stretching out to sleep: "Where shall I travel tonight?" Fay Wray just missing the boat. Gals in the new sailors. Add handsome couples: The Bob Johnsons.

What's become of Bud Fisher? Constant wonder. When will Mayor Bowes run out of amateurs?

Ding Dong Lin the theater lobby: Hattie Bell Johnston meeting Blanche Ring. Not much resemblance, to my notion, between the Morgan twins. The pretty, cobb-capped Heywood Broun slunging along like a grizzly through a thicket. Those pure children left in care of maids and governesses.

Most youngsters when they begin to ponder about neckties are wont to form mental pictures of the perfect man about town. The regent who is ultra-sophisticated, slightly blase, belongs to the proper clubs, patronizes the best tailors, attends prize fights and cocking mains, knows exactly how to pat a top hat into correct angle and wear a muffler with that certain je ne sais pas quoi. This figure of imagery would symbolize both worldliness and ennui. My nearest idea to him in the flesh would be a composite of Ben Ali Haggin and William Rhinelander Stewart.

If the practice of fisticuffs continues in night clubs, some modern Marquis of Queensbury will have to evolve a precise set of rules—something approaching the old code duello. For example, just where is that undefinable deadline beyond which a man must sock an offender or be branded a caitiff?

In one imbroglio at the Stork Club a participant declared with flushed earnestness he might have regarded the snatching of his cigarette as something to laugh off except for the nasty way in which it was done. A fine point there—my countrymen!

A night club impressario who knows the upper-world as well as lower tells me that in his experience with those who go the pace he has known but one user of the Indian drug hashish, which many declare is not habit-forming. This user is a retired British army officer, a fellow of means, long billeted to the Far East.

Once every so often he forsakes his sumptuous club to go on a hashish binge. At such times he seeks music, lights and the whirl of dancing girls. He comes alone, sits immobile—watching. The drug gives a vision of things not dreamed in your philosophy, Horatio. The stuff looks like painter's ink and you eat it. It has a strange, exotic odor like nothing else in the scale of aromas.

Gone with the wind: Tony Hughes, the actor, was sauntering through West 49th street when a puff of sudden breeze blew a scrap of paper in front of him. He picked it up—a part of a letter. All he could read on one side was, "don't. I shall kill myself." On the other side a row of X's. Blue paper and highly perfumed.

President Roosevelt has flashes of blinking. Will Rogers was always flirting back that unruly forelock. Mayor LaGuardia likes to hop from one chair to another during conferences. David Warfield, while waiting in the wings, would crack his knuckles, and Colonel Lindbergh rubs his thumbs across finger ends.

For my money, the De Marcos as the nicest, fairest in ballroom dancing. I've never stayed out until 2 a. m. without a yen to stop in at Reuben's. Texas strikes me as the most hospitable state for the total stranger. I never went into a classy haberdashery without buying more than I wanted.

Is anything more disconsolate and heart-wrenching than when you are walking down a lonely road on a cold, blowy night to hear the pitiable meowing of a small, lost gray kitten? And ere her approach, wistfully and let you rub her back and have it rub against your trouser leg with a delicious purr? To have to walk away and leave her to the cold pavement and deserted street. To see it follow a few steps and then give up in despair.

You always regret you did not take it home to a warm kitchen and a saucer of milk. Where's that kitty now? One hopes not stiff with eyes glazed and tossed in an ash barrel.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Not until he begins to tell the story of one of his old romances to his bride does a man realize how little of it was romance and how much of it was bunk.

One way of making a man love you is to let him do you a lot of favors; and one way of making him forget you is to do HIM a lot of favors.

What a man should remember when he writes a letter is that a girl is not interested in the condition of the roads or the beauty of the weather, but in the state of his emotions and the temperature of his affections.

Many a beautiful love affair ends in life as a breach of promise suit, and many a lawyer is kept soldering up broken hearts with gold.

Marriage is the turning point at which a man stops "babying" a girl—and expects her to begin "mothering" him.

Ever since Adam woke up with a pain in his side and found a rib missing the chief cause of a man's insomnia has been a WOMAN.

Every spinster longs for the impossible—and every wife sometimes thinks she has married it.
